FUEL COSTS MORE
—but the consumption of the
AGA "HEAVY DUTY" COOKER
is fixed—and the lowest in the world

Guaranteed maximum fuel consumption.

Most economical cooking service obtainable in wartime, or any time.

The Aga works a 24-hour day, and is independent of district breakdowns or emergencies.

The AGA heat storage cooker is entirely independent and self-contained. The AGA Model H 138, supplied for the new kitchen at the Rotunda Hospital (illustrated on this page), has 7½ cubic feet of oven space and 7¼ square feet of hot plates, and is capable of a very large output. Yet it is guaranteed not to burn more than 9½ tons of fuel in a year, considerably less than 1 ton per month.

AGA Cookers are in general use in hotels, hospitals, schools and institutions of all sorts.

Full particulars of the Aga Heavy Duty Cooker will be gladly sent by

The Nurses' Home, Rotunda Hospital.

"In the Rotunda Hospital Dublin has a great heritage, which any city should be proud to maintain. To the memory of Bartholomew Mosse we owe it that his great memorial shall not suffer from any lack of loving and generous care."

So wrote Dr. T. Percy Kirkpatrick in a short history of the hospital published for the Governors' annual report; and right worthily have successive Masters of that great hospital carried out, in spirit, as well as in letter, the wise provisions laid down for the guidance of the hospital by its inspired founder. Over a quarter of a million women have been treated within its walls, and many thousands of others in their own homes by its officers. Many who learned midwifery in the Rotunda have used that knowledge for the benefit of women of every country in the world, and the wise provisions of the Rotunda have helped to fashion many similar foundations. This is as it should be, and as was intended by its founder, Dr. Mosse, who designed the hospital as a great School of Midwifery. The hospital charter received from King George the Second envisaged such a development as it provided that "all students in physic, surgeons or apprentices of surgeons, and all such others, whether men or women, as intend to practise midwifery, and shall be approved by the said Master, shall and may have full liberty to attend the said hospital, and be instructed under the said Master and his two assistants."

Apart from its incalculable work as a teaching and training centre the hospital has continued, year in year out, to increase the number of its patients both in the internal and external maternity departments until they have grown to really astonishing figures. In the year 1939 the number of women delivered in both departments was 4,799. The number who attended the out-patients' departments was 38,951.

What a remarkable contrast these figures make when compared with the records of the original hospital in George's Lane, which in the twelve years of its existence from 1745 to 1757 had 3,975 women in its wards!

To deal with such a growing clientèle there have from time to time been additions made to the hospital, but, with loving and jealous care, the building as originally designed by Richard Castle, the great Georgian architect, who had just then completed the building of Leinster House, and at the time was engaged in building Carton, in County Kildare, has been kept intact. The wear and tear of over one hundred and eighty years, however, became apparent, and repairs have been needed to keep the building in an efficient state.

Thanks to the funds made available by the Hospitals' Sweepstakes the whole structure of the hospital, both inside and outside, has been put into good repair, while important additions, made necessary by the ever-increasing work, have materially increased the accommodation both for patients and staff.

OUT-PATIENTS' DEPARTMENT

The first and most important extension was the building of a new Out Patients' Department, which was opened in May, 1936, and immediately justified its erection in the increased numbers of patients. In the following year there was an increase of fifty per cent.

The plan of the new building, which was carried out by Mr. F. G. Hicks, F.R.I.B.A., was the general conception of the Master, Dr. A. H. Davidson, and the Assistant Master, Dr. E. Solomons. The main idea was a one-way traffic scheme, which would prevent congestion of patients and accelerate the emptying of the waiting-room. The waiting-room accommodates one hundred patients at a time. Opening off it is a buffet, chart room, lavatories, consulting room, and gynæcological surgeries. Off a wide corridor are fourteen dressing cubicles, communicating with the ante-natal room, in which seven patients can be examined simultaneously. This is a most important feature, as often there are over one hundred patients to be examined in an afternoon.

There is an infant clinic held daily in the consulting room. Also there is a small theatre, sterilising room, and recovery room for minor operations, laboratory, sister's room, store, doctor's retiring room, and dressing-room for students.

The building is in brick, faced with two-inch Ballinphellic bricks, which harmonise with the surroundings.

In the year 1939 the number of out-patients treated was approximately 40,000, compared with a total of 20,000 treated in 1935.

During the year 1936 the old wards of the hospital were reconditioned, new floors and ceilings being installed. There was also a completely new electrical and heating system put in throughout the entire hospital; and a new block was created, containing bathrooms, lavatories and sterilising rooms.

In the following year there was a re-arrangement and reconditioning of the labour wards. Most of these wards were enlarged, so as to make more space for students and post-graduates. Walls and floors were renewed in tiles and terrazzo. A number of private labour wards and private cubicles for patients were also installed.

In the same year a new roof kitchen was built on the top of the main buildings. This has tiled walls and floors, and contains a set of Aga cookers, with steamers for meat, vegetables, etc., and a number of electrical labour-saving machines for kitchen work, as well as a refrigerator. The cooked food is carried on electrically heated food trollies by lift to the various ward kitchens, and from there distributed to the wards.

NURSES' NEW HOME

During the summer of 1938 a nurses' new home was built and opened in the hospital grounds. This building is of brick and reinforced concrete construction, faced with rich red Ballinphellic bricks, such brickwork as makes up virtually the whole of the surrounding houses in Parnell square. The change of level in the grounds of fourteen feet enabled the architect to keep the north elevation low and plan the suite of recreation rooms at a lower level than the principal entrance, facing the hospital gardens and tennis courts on the south.

On this face eight pieces of Portland stone have been carved by Mr. Peter Brennan, which represent the Greek gods of medicine and healing.

All the supplies and services are brought through a man-high underground duct from the main hospital, and, as there are no complications of feeding provided in the building, the detail planning has resolved itself into very simple, straightforward lines.

Light harmonising colours in the rooms, stairs and corridors, and in the treatment of the walls and floors, have been enlivened by the careful use of discords to avoid any apparent visual monotony.

Every nurse's bedroom is fitted with a built-in dressing table and wardrobe, each automatically lighted. The floors of the bedrooms are all polished pitch pine, and the corridors and stairs are covered with thick linoleum, permanently fixed to the concrete. All the furniture and furnishings were specially selected and made in Dublin.

Adding to the amenities of the home are pictures, including some beautiful water colours of Irish scenery, which were presented by the Master, Dr. A. H. Davidson. These are hung in the principal lounge and recreation rooms, and in the staff nurses' sittingroom is an oval Sheraton table, presented by the architect, Mr. F. G. Hicks.

Other notable additions during the year 1937-'38 were the completion of the new X-ray and dark rooms. New equipment was installed, consisting of a 350 m.a. Newton and Wright transformer with valve rectification, which eliminates the noise of the earlier apparatus; a gynæcological table, and two X-ray tubes, one with a rotating anode. The apparatus is fully protected against high tension shock.

The dark room, connected with the X-ray room by a doorless light lock, is fitted with thermostatically controlled electric heating for the developing and fixing tanks, which are of stainless steel. A drying cabinet has also been installed. Efficient ventilation is maintained by an electric fan. The apparatus is capable of approximately three times the output of the old installation, and renders possible the production of radiographs of greater diagnostic value.

The work of the department has shown a very considerable increase due mainly to the greater use of radiological methods for determining pelvic measurements.

Radio reception and distribution equipment has been installed in the Hospital, and earphones have been supplied for the patients. That this has brought great pleasure and benefit to patients goes almost without saying.

NEW QUARTERS FOR STUDENTS

Accommodation for students had become a very serious problem owing to the greatly increasing numbers. In the year 1938, for instance, five hundred and twenty-six post-graduates and students from all parts of the world were in attendance. The completion of the nurses' new home made available their former accommodation in the Hospital, and this wing, on the south-western corner, has now been reconditioned and installed with modern services to form part of the new quarters for students. To this was added the extension just completed, and the building linked up with the old structure, provides accommodation for over sixty students in residence. The new structure shows the classical characteristics which are inherent in the main Rotunda building. The library and sittingroom, with mural decorations by Patita Bourke, and the diningroom are arranged en suite. In the basement are billiard room, kitchen, with its appurtenances, a number of shower baths, and the lavatories. The roof is of concrete, reinforced with coverbond. The floors are of the same material, and are supported on brick-bearing walls, which have been externally faced in County Dublin granite to match existing buildings. All the finishes have been kept uniform in the rooms, the relief in the recreation rooms being secured by colour and general decoration.

The kitchen is equipped with an Aga "heavy duty" cooker of the latest type, a literally shining example of the modern heat-storage cooker, originally invented by a blind man, Dr. Dalen, the Swedish scientist and Nobel prize winner. This cooker is equipped with two large ovens and ample hot plate area, and, though capable of a very large cooking output and ready for use at any time, day or night, the fuel consumption is extraordinarily low, being guaranteed not to exceed 9½ tons per annum, a most important economy in the hospital budget. The fuel is smokeless anthracite, resulting in complete cleanliness of the cooker, the cooking utensils and the entire kitchen.

It is interesting to know that this Aga installation is one of several in the Rotunda Hospital; there is a battery of four Aga cookers in the main kitchen, and four others in auxiliary kitchens, including the Master's residence.

The extension was designed by Mr. F. G. Hicks, F.R.I.B.A., F.R.I.A.I., Merrion square, Dublin, ably assisted by Mr. Alan Hope, B.Arch.

The work of addition and improvement still goes on, and there are now in course of construction new maternity wards. These, it is hoped, will be completed soon.

Bartholomew Mosse's Lying-in Hospital in George's lane, in 1745, was the first opened in Great Britain and Ireland. His new hospital in the New Gardens, on the North side of Great Britain street, more than realised the far-seeing young surgeon's expectations. Down the intervening years the Rotunda Hospital earned and maintained for itself, its doctors and graduates, a world-wide reputation, and Mosse's successors are inspired with the keenest desire to maintain the Rotunda's proud reputation as the first lying-in hospital in the world.

CONTRACTORS

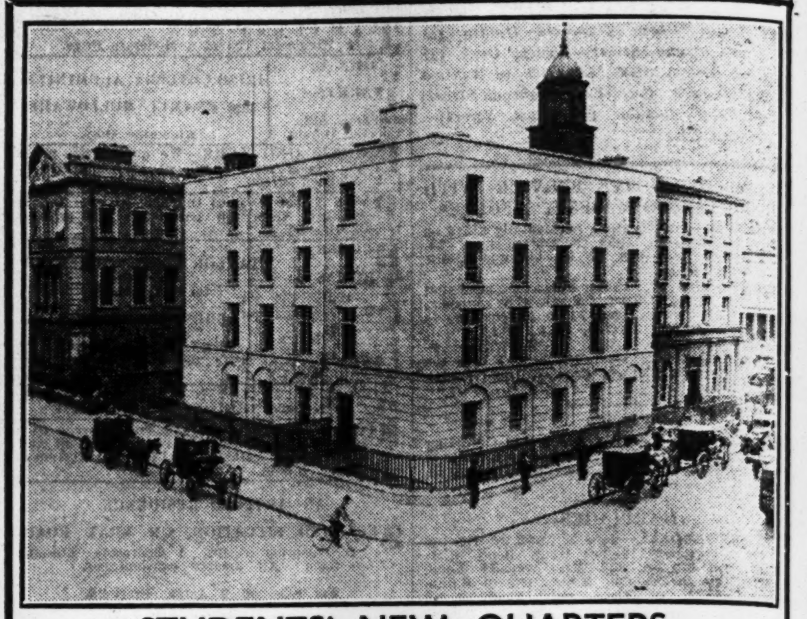
Cold-room and refrigerator equipment supplied by Messrs. Thomas A. Taggart, Ltd., refrigerator engineers and Irish manufacturers, 16 East Lombard street, Dublin.

Sanitary fittings, etc., supplied by Messrs. Davis, King and Co., Ltd., builders' suppliers, 5 Leinster street, Dublin.

The entire furnishing of the nurses' home and students' quarters was carried out by Messrs. Millar and Beatty, Ltd., 13-14 Grafton street, Dublin.

The Irish Electro-Medical Co., Ltd., 52 South King street, Dublin, installed the X-ray apparatus, etc.

The painting and decorating of the new students' quarters and hospital was entirely carried out by A. Davidson, 19 Marlborough street, Dublin.



STUDENTS' NEW QUARTERS

ROTUNDA HOSPITAL, DUBLIN

The Hospital contains 155 beds and deals with some 4,000 Maternity cases and 600 Gynæcological cases per annum. Facilities are given to Students and Post-Graduates for observing clinical obstetrical work in the wards, and to Post-Graduates for carrying out forceps and other obstetrical operations.

There is also an Extern Dept. dealing with upwards of 6,000 cases a year.

Ante-Natal clinics are held three days a week, and deal with some 5,000 cases a year. There is also an extensive Gynæcological Department, where Post-Graduates are permitted to assist at major operations, and perform some minor ones. Lectures on Gynæcological Pathology and Pathological Demonstrations are given weekly. In the Pædiatric Department two Pædiatric clinics and one Lecture are held weekly. A new X-ray plant has been installed, which greatly facilitates the study of this important aid to obstetrics.

The courses are continuous throughout the year, and Students and Post-Graduates may join at any time, as the courses are continuous throughout the year; but it is advisable to register in advance. Extra classes in Gynæcological Diagnosis and Operative Midwifery are conducted by the Assistants to the Master. The L.M. Diploma is given to fully-qualified practitioners on examination after six months' attendance at the Hospital. (In the case of Dublin Students who have taken out their Midwifery course at the Hospital, this is shortened to three months.)

Fees: One month, £6 6s. 0d.; two months, £10 10s. 0d.; three months, £12 12s. 0d.; L.M. course, £21. Board and residence can be obtained in the Hospital at £2 2s. 0d. per week.

Post-Graduate courses of two to three weeks are given under special circumstances to doctors practising in Ireland. Fee: 2 weeks, £4 4s. 0d.; 3 weeks, £5 5s 0d.

CONSTRUCTION OF MAJOR'S WILL

JUDGMENT RESERVED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE BLACK.)

Judgment was reserved on questions arising on the construction of the will of Major John J. E. Poe, formerly of the Royal Irish Regiment, and of St. Anne's, Coliemore road, Dalkey, who died on December 9, 1938.

The matter came before the Court on a summons taken out by Arthur Percy Poe, retired major, Harley Park, Co. Tipperary, his brother and heir-at-law, in his capacity as executor of the will, which had been made as a soldier's will in 1916. The property disposed of by the will consisted, in addition to family heirlooms, of investments, furniture, money and farm stock, and the value was approximately £12,300.

Among the questions which the Court was asked to determine were—(a) Whether the class of children entitled under the disposition of the testator's land and other property in favour of the children of his brother, Arthur Percy Poe, was confined to children of Arthur Percy Poe living at the death of the testator? (b) Whether the said class included the children living at the death of the testator and any child or children that might at any time be born to Arthur Percy Poe?

Mr. Paul McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. R. O'Hanrahan (instructed by Dr. M. J. Crotty) appeared for Arthur Geoffrey Poe, Lieut.-Commander, Royal Navy; Violet E. Poe, both of Harley Park, and Olive Susan Mallock, McKenzie road, Ahmednagar, India, children of Arthur Percy Poe. Mr. A. K. Overend, K.C., and Mr. C. F. Matheson (instructed by Messrs. Bennett, Thompson and Edwards), appeared for Mrs. Olive Ball, Lawrie Park road, Sydenham, London, a sister of the testator and one of his next-of-kin; and Mr. T. S. McCann, K.C. (instructed by Mr. J. Robinson, general solicitor for minors), for the unborn children of Arthur Percy Poe.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT

"NOT GUILTY" VERDICT

(BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT AND A JURY.)

Denis Williams, labourer, Enniskerry, Co. Wicklow, pleaded "not guilty" yesterday to a charge of a serious offence against a girl under 15 years of age.

Williams was found "not guilty."

Mr. R. J. McLoughlin, K.C., and Mr. Tadhg Forbes (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted; and Mr. A. E. Wood, S.C., with Mr. McSweeney (instructed by Mr. J. P. Tyrrell, solicitor) defended.

SEQUEL TO SCENE AT BALDOYLE

DISTRICT JUSTICE WARNS WITNESS

At Kilmainham District Court yesterday, before District Justice O'Sullivan, the hearing was resumed of the case in which thirteen men were charged with unlawful assembly at Baldoyle racecourse on May 14, disorderly conduct, and with having assaulted Daniel Towell and Patrick Kinsella and causing them grievous bodily harm, with intent to murder.

The accused men—all of whom appeared in custody, with the exception of Hughes, who was on bail—were: William Boyd, East Arran street; Joseph Craven, South James's street; Patrick Murphy, Rialto Cottages; Patrick Curtis, Downpatrick road, Crumlin; James Winters, Coombe street; Christopher Donohoe, Mount Brown; John Hughes, Lower Gardiner street; George Hannigan, 36 Dolphin road; Kevin Walsh, 4 Ash street; Leo Campion, Ceannt's Fort, Mount Brown; William Ryan, 35 Garden lane; Peter Kennedy, 10 Engine alley, and Joseph Brown, 7 Ash street.

Hannigan was also charged that he did counsel, procure and command the other accused men and other persons to wound Daniel Towell and Patrick Kinsella, with intent to do them grievous bodily harm.

Daniel Towell, who was regarded as a hostile witness, recalled, said that of the accused men he only knew Hannigan and slightly knew Hughes. He did not tell Superintendent Cronin that he knew Winters well. The Superintendent came to see him when he was in hospital. He did not say that James Winters wounded him and that he saw him running at him with a big knife.

Following cross-examination by Mr. P. J. McEnery, K.C., for the prosecution,

The Justice told witness that it was possible that he might be tried on a charge of perjury.

The further hearing of the case was adjourned.

Hannigan was admitted to bail, himself in £500 and two sureties of £250 each, and the others on personal bail of £50 and two sureties of £50 each.

ROAD ACCIDENTS

ACTIONS SETTLED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

A settlement for £1,000 and a sum for costs was announced in an action in which John D. Rooney, farmer, Botanic road, Glasnevin, Dublin, claimed damages against John Sythes, merchant, Main street, Cavan, for injuries suffered when a lorry of Mr. Sythes knocked him off his bicycle at Groatstown, Dunshaughlin, County Meath, on November 27 last.

Mr. J. M. Fitzgerald, K.C., and Mr. Ernest M. Wood (instructed by Mr. James Fagan) appeared for Mr. Rooney; and Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., and Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) for Mr. Sythes.

In an action in which Mrs. Mary Smyth, The Bungalow, Stepaside, County Dublin, claimed damages against Peter Murphy, Ballyedmondduff, Sandyford, County Dublin, for injuries caused to her when her son, Patrick's, motor car, in which she was travelling, and Mr. Murphy's motor car were involved in a collision at Kilgobbin, County Dublin, on September 3 last, a settlement for £300, without costs, was announced.

Mr. Michael J. Ryan, K.C., and Mr. Anthony Burke (instructed by Messrs. Burke and Burke) appeared for Mrs. Smyth; and Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Messrs. W. G. Bradley and Sons) for Mr. Murphy.

GERMANS IN URUGUAY

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.

MONTEVIDEO, Wednesday.

The German Minister, Herr Langmann, in a letter to the Press, denies a few of the points mentioned in the report to the Chamber of Deputies of the Special Committee investigating Nazi activities in Uruguay. He says that the points that he denies stamp the "false nature" of the report, which, he claims, is thus unworthy of attention.

General Roletti, Minister of Defence, has issued an assurance that all danger has passed, but public opinion is demanding still more energetic action.

"ESTEREL" FURNITURE AUCTION

The second day of the auction at "Esterel," Temple road, Dartry, yesterday provided buyers for 330 further lots which came under the hammer of the auctioneers, Messrs. Battersby and Co. There was a crowded attendance, and competition was as keen as on the first day. The goods offered yesterday comprised chiefly the furnishings of the reception rooms, halls and principal bedrooms. A résumé of the prices is given below in guineas:—Marble Case Clock and Barometer, 7; pair Oriental Bronze Vases, 11; Set of 8 Single Chairs with cane seats, 35; Mahogany Bureau and Bookcase, 22; English Silver Inkstand, 8½; Chippendale-style Mahogany Display Cabinet, 20; Antique Mahogany Falling-leaf Table, 8; Ormolu-mounted Chiming Clock, 16; Mahogany Tallboy Drawers, 25 to 11 each; pair Chippendale style Mahogany Single Beds, 44; Nelson Mahogany do., 21; Chippendale-style Mahogany Wardrobe, 31; Mahogany-framed Cheval Glass, 12; Mahogany Bow-fronted Chest of Drawers, 16; Mahogany-frame Toilet Glass, 7. The most interesting items for to-day's sale include a set of "Brocas" coloured views of Dublin, the "Talbot" Saloon Car, Garden Furniture and Effects, Greenhouse Plants, etc., and the remainder of the Reception Room and Kitchen Furniture.

At the last meeting of Kam, the Arts Club, the following motion was debated: "That this house deplores the present system of censorship in Eire." After a heated discussion the motion was carried.

BALBRIGGAN WOMAN'S WILL

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MARTIN MAGUIRE AND A JURY.)

Following the withdrawal of opposition, announced when the solicitor for the plaintiff had concluded his evidence, the jury found in favour of the will of November 8, 1939, of Miss Catherine Landy, late of Dublin street, Balbriggan, who died on 20th November, 1939, leaving the major portion of her property, which totalled nearly £5,000, to William Walsh, Dublin street, Balbriggan, who had been in the employment of her and her family for twenty years.

All parties were allowed their costs out of the estate.

William Walsh, Dublin street, Balbriggan, had sought, as executor, to have the will established, and the granting of probate was opposed on the usual grounds by a number of persons claiming to be next-of-kin, who had been cited as defendants. They were: Richard Harford, insurance agent, Hampton street, Balbriggan; Miss Jane Harford, Clonard street, Balbriggan; Mrs. Catherine Furlong, Carysfort road, Dalkey; Mrs. Teresa Dillon, The Matt, Balbriggan, and Joseph Mooney, building contractor, Balbriggan.

Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., Mr. Charles S. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Joseph O'Doherty (instructed by Mr. G. L. McGowan) appeared for William J. Walsh; Mr. P. J. Roe, K.C., Mr. R. McGonigal, K.C., and Mr. Ashley Powell (instructed by Mr. Joseph Barrett) for Richard Harford, Miss Jane Harford and Mrs. Catherine Furlong; and Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., and Mr. Ernest M. Wood (instructed by Mr. James Fagan) for Mrs. Teresa Dillon.

DAMAGES FOR 'BUS DRIVER

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

Samuel Evans, 'bus driver, Healy street, North Circular road, Dublin, claimed damages against Independent Newspapers, Ltd., Middle Abbey street, Dublin, for injuries suffered when he and a motor van, the property of the defendants, came into collision at Lower O'Connell street, Dublin, on December 14, 1939.

The defence was a denial of negligence and a plea of contributory negligence.

Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., and Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. G. Byrne and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., Mr. D. Fawsitt, K.C., and Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. Little, O hUadhaigh and Proud) for the defendants.

The jury found in favour of the plaintiff and assessed damages at £465, and judgment was given accordingly with costs.

SCIATICA AND NEURITIS

Anybody in the cruel grip of Sciatica, Neuritis, Lumbago or other form of agonising Rheumatism naturally wants the quickest possible relief from the unbearable pain. Such relief can come only when the fiery acid crystals are broken down and rinsed away—not an easy matter when the crystals are set deep in tissues or muscles.

The minerals of certain great Spa Waters, however, are celebrated for their powerful anti-Rheumatic action, and similar minerals are nowadays available for everybody in the form of Fynnon Salt. One teaspoonful of the Salt in a tumblerful of water every morning is a splendid remedy—simple, inexpensive and marvellously effective. It has brought speedy relief and new health to thousands!

Fynnon's curative elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium, etc., dissolve even the most deep-set acid crystals. They also restore liver and kidneys to full, healthy activity so that the acid residue, together with any poisons and toxins present, are rinsed clean away. The whole system is thus refreshed and invigorated—giving you not merely peace and ease, but rousing new health. Large tin, 1/6.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

BOOKMAKER'S "DOUBLE" LIMIT

SUCCESSFUL DEFENCE

(BEFORE MR. McCARTHY.)

That his limit for a "double" on an Irish race meeting was 25 to 1, was the defence successfully put forward by Richard Coyle, bookmaker, Ignatius road, Dublin, when he was sued for £18, the amount claimed to be due on a "double" at 100 to 1. The plaintiff was Robert Hartigan, bookmaker's clerk, William's place, Dublin.

A decree was given for £6 13s., the amount due at 25 to 1.

Mr. J. V. Brady appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. M. A. Lynch for the defendant.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

A VILLAGE OF FRANCE — RETROSPECT

Soldiers' Caps

A young woman of my acquaintance has been commenting adversely on the caps which are worn by the Volunteer Force, and, I see, will become standard for the whole Irish Army in the near future. What, by the way, is the correct name of those caps?

Her comment is that they seem to serve no useful purpose. Like the Egyptian tarboosh, she says, they are no protection against either sun or rain. She admits that they can be worn with a jaunty air; but she refuses to regard them as an attractive form of headgear, and greatly prefers the beret, or tam-o'-shanter, which is sported by some of our troops.

I assured her that, on the contrary, these caps have many and great advantages. In the first place, they take up very little room in the equipment of a soldier who has to replace his normal cap by a tin helmet. In the second place, they are by no means as simple as they look; for they possess flaps which can be pulled down over the ears and buttoned under the chin as a protection against cold.

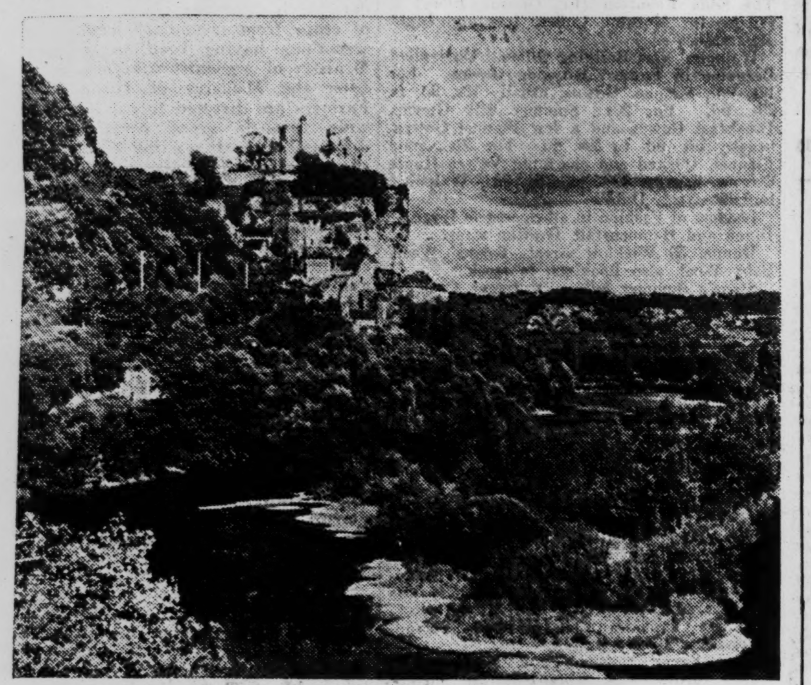
In fact, their utility is far greater than the hitherto fashionable cap—the one with a peak and a flat roof—which must be appallingly inconvenient on active service.

And as for the relative appearance of these forms of headgear, surely it all boils down to a matter of the face beneath them?

A Memory of France

"Nichevo" writes:—

Reading yesterday of the dreadful plight of refugees in France, and of my friend, Pomaret's appeal to villagers to remain in their homes, I thought of a little village which I visited a year ago with that same Pomaret, who, by the way, is the only Protestant in the French Government. He represents a department in the Ardèche, where he has turned the local prison in Florac into a week-end retreat.



I wonder what is happening in that little village to-day? It is one of the loveliest spots in Europe, snuggling by the side of a river full of fish, and under the shadow of a huge cliff, on top of which is perched an eleventh century church.

It is impossible to imagine war in that village, which shall be nameless, since it is typical of a thousand other villages of rural France, with its snowy acacia trees in early June, its clustering cherries in scarlet profusion, its rambling haphazard roses, and its trilling nightingales in the velvet darkness of the summer nights.

"Tout Est Charmant"

I can see the patron of the little auberge there, with his great moustachios, his beret stuck on the back of his head, and his dancing Gallic eyes, shelling peas by the thousand outside the garage door, surrounded by the serving maids, Georgette, Denise and Henriette, all busy at their several chores, all laughing, chattering, joking, and bubbling over with the joy of life.

I can see young Marcel, the boy of all work—and they do know how to work in France—dashing up and down the stairs, leaping on his battered bicycle to do an errand for the house, fetching and carrying, carrying and fetching from dawn till dusk, now whistling shrilly, now singing a catch of a song:

Sous les plantains blancs de Perpignan
Tout est charmant, tout est charmant;

now giving one of the girls a sly squeeze and dodging a box on the ear; but always living as only the French can live.

Peace!

I can see the podgy little village padre, in his shabby soutane and greasy velours hat, pedalling industriously along the road on his lady's bicycle, poorer than any of the mice in his church on the hill.

I can hear Madame's strident voice calling "Marcel, Marcel," adding, sotto voce, the French equivalent of "Drat the boy," as she fusses about the huge kitchen preparing one of those incredible meals of paté, chicken stuffed with truffles, ablettes fresh from the river, doughnuts of ambrosial delicacy, and half-a-dozen other equally inviting courses.

I can see them all foregathering in the diningroom after supper, guests, serving maids, Madame herself, her two daughters, one of whom is well married in a neighbouring town and has a car of her own, to dance the bourrée, or bundling themselves, seven or eight of them, into the patron's ramshackle Citroen to visit the circus that has arrived some miles away.

There is nothing to do in that village. Nobody keeps late hours, and you can walk along the jet-black roads for miles without seeing a soul or hearing a sound but the croak of the bull-frogs in a marsh across the hill and the eternal, haunting notes of the nightingales.

Where are They?

If ever the Creator gave peace to his people, it was in that village of France. The stretching shadows of the poplar trees of an evening never were meant to fall upon men and women fleeing from the pursuing wrath of their fellow creatures. Those limpid river pools never were meant to reflect the ugly shapes of war's machinery, or the surging cornfields to be crushed into desolation.

Poor little Marcel must be a soldier now, if he is alive—and Denise's swarthy husband who had a job in a little inn up the road, and the queer-looking man with the beard and the leggings who was supposed to have something to do with art, but told nobody his business.

Perhaps they all are streaming along the highways towards the South, leaving Madame's lessive in the big coppers on the river's bank, and the hungry dogs to whom we used to throw scraps from the balcony, to prowl about the rubble of those humble homes.

An Enjoyable Visit to Cork : Fishing with Quick Results : Southern Tennis Players

By PAUL DENIS

An Unusual Tennis Club

I HAVE just returned from an enjoyable week's holidays in Cork, in the course of which I played in the Glanmire tennis tournament. The Glanmire club is rather remarkable—in fact, it may even be unique—as the courts have been cut out of the side of a steep hill. It is, I believe, an old-established club, but I cannot imagine how anyone could have even conceived such a project, and it must have been immensely difficult to carry out. The results, however, have been well worth the labour, for one almost gets the impression of playing in the Swiss Alps. Each court is on a separate plateau, with a high bank on one side and at the ends, and a steep drop on the other side—well wired in, of course. The view is magnificent, and the whole lay-out makes it one of the most unusual tennis clubs I have seen.

Variety in the Programme

One can have a splendid time in and around Cork, and tournaments there are light-hearted affairs, in which everyone sets out to enjoy themselves. My own programme consisted of a swim before breakfast, a few holes of golf before lunch and tennis in the afternoon and evening. I managed to get in an afternoon's yachting, and finished the week with a fishing expedition, which was, perhaps, more enjoyable than anything else. I had never done any fishing before; in fact, I was always inclined to regard it as just about the dullest of sports, but I got a great thrill out of catching something in the region of thirty whiting myself. We spent a considerable part of the day over whiting grounds, where the fish fairly leaped at the bait, so the experienced fisherman would possibly sneer at my excitement; but, for the novice, quick results count more than anything else, and the results could hardly have been quicker. An occasional dog-fish added variety to the proceedings, and I must confess I was thoroughly alarmed every time I brought up one of that unpleasant breed. I may add that I had no hand, act, or part in dealing with them myself. Sun-bathing in a deck-chair and an occasional leap into the very chilly water completed an extraordinarily pleasant day.

Daly's Fine Service

There are no embryo Davis Cup players in Cork at present, but E. M. Daly might well have reached that stage a few years ago had he not so many other interests besides tennis. He has a first-class service—I should say the best in this country—and he attacks at every opportunity. If he is hitting, his round-arm volleys well; he is a proposition for anyone; but the question of defence never occurs to him, and to win matches consistently one must have some defence as well as attack. He lost in the semi-final to F. C. South, one of the best all-rounders in Southern Ireland. South, in contrast to Daly, does not carry much pace, but he is extremely sound, and a tireless retriever, very fast about the court. He is one of Munster's best badminton players, and he has also represented his province at hockey, showing considerable skill as a full-back. A. Haughton, son of B. Haughton, a Davis Cup player, and one of our best doubles players of the past, promised to do big things when he won the junior singles at Fitzwilliam a few years ago, but he is somewhat disappointing. He has an excellent style and nice ground shots, but he does not press home the vital points. In the semi-final against the eventual winner, G. P. Jackson, the young Dublin player, Haughton, saved four match points, and then had two himself before losing.

Enterprising Members

Here is a tip for other enterprising tennis clubs. The Glanmire members have so much talent in singing, acting and dancing that they have formed a concert party and have raised quite useful sums of money for improving the pavilion and grounds. They gave a concert after the day's play had ended on the Thursday night of the tournament, and a great success it was, too. I suppose it is too much to expect our rather stern and serious open tournaments in Dublin to do something on the same lines, but it does add to the fun of the week. Before I left Cork I had the pleasure of seeing one of its most esteemed citizens riding a bicycle in a dignified manner along one of the principal streets of the city.

A Story with a Moral

The defeat of Bruen in the Irish Close Golf Championship at Dollymount this week must have disappointed a lot of people in the South, even though it was accomplished by another Southern golfer, William O'Sullivan. Is he beginning to think too much about his golf? Certainly he is not the overwhelming force he was a couple of years ago, though for consistency he is still our best player. I heard a story the other day concerning one of our leading amateurs which may or may not be true, but I found decidedly amusing. A few years ago this player was an extremely fine putter, and one day, following a championship match, a spectator asked him the innocent question: "Do you putt with your right hand or your left?" The player scratched his head and, after reflection, confessed that he did not know—and from that day to this his putting has been thoroughly uncertain.

WEDDINGS

MR. H. T. COLEMAN AND MISS UNA HAYES

The wedding took place yesterday, at University Church, Dublin, of Mr. Herbert T. Coleman, only son of Mr. Thomas A. Coleman and the late Mrs. Coleman, of Claddagh, Temple Villas, Palmerston road, Dublin, and Miss Una Hayes, younger daughter of the late Dr. Maurice R. J. Hayes and of Mrs. Hayes, 35 Upper Fitzwilliam street, Dublin.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Deering, C.C., assisted by the Rev. J. Pierce and the Rev. Father Prendergast.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Owen Hayes, wore a picture gown of white net, over satin, and a tulle veil, arranged over a halo of pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and white heather.

Miss Peggy Coleman and Miss Brenda Cullen were the bridesmaids. Their dresses were of primrose-coloured shadow lace, and they wore lace hats, trimmed with flowers to tone, and carried Victorian posies.

Mr. R. H. Ryan acted as best man.

After a reception, held by the bride's mother, who wore a wool lace dress of powder-blue, with navy accessories, Mr. and Mrs. Coleman left for the South of Ireland, the bride wearing a woodland brown coat, a wool georgette costumes, and a cream Bankok straw hat.

The Rev. J. P. Murphy C.M., Castleknock, officiated.

The bride was given away by her father, and was attended by Miss Alyse Connolly.

Mr. Sean Little, B.Agr.Sc., Borris, County Carlow, acted as best man.

After a reception in the Gresham Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left for the South of Ireland.

MR. G. E. EDGE AND MISS M. A. SHARPE

At the Harcourt Street Baptist Church, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. George E. Edge, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Edge, Lonsdale, Raheny, was married to Miss Margaret A. Sharpe, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Sharpe, 13 Inverness road, Fairview.

The Rev. Louis E. Deens officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a Victorian gown of ivory slipper satin and a tulle veil arranged over a halo of orange blossom. Her bouquet was of pale pink roses. She was attended by Miss Gertrude Wheeler, who wore a crinoline gown of pale mauve georgette and a Victorian bonnet, and she carried a posy of pale pink flowers.

Mr. E. W. Edge acted as best man.

After a reception in the Standard Hotel Mr. and Mrs. George Edge left for the South of Ireland, the bride wearing a two-piece ensemble of aquamarine blue marocain, with navy accessories.

MR. F. B. ATKINSON AND MISS J. M. CARRUTHERS

The wedding took place on the 2nd of June at St. Mary's Parish Church, Bootle, of Mr. Frederick Booth Atkinson, B.Eng., elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Atkinson, "The Coppins," Woolahara Park, Cork, and Miss Jessie M. M. Carruthers, of "Stoneleigh," St. Edmond's road, Bootle.

The Rev. F. W. Lloyd officiated.

Mr. Harry Carruthers, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of "rockies" blue crepe romaine, with a cap of natural pink roses, tied with blue tulle, and she carried a bouquet of pale pink roses. Her youngest sister, Miss Nette Carruthers, the only bridesmaid, wore an oyster pink taffeta dress and carried a Victorian posy.

After the ceremony a quiet family reception was held at the bride's home.

MR. P. A. NOONAN AND MISS PEG MURPHY

The marriage took place yesterday at St. Agnes's Church, Crumlin, of Mr. P. A. Noonan, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Noonan, Frankfort avenue, Rathgar, and Miss Peg Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Murphy, Portumna.

Miss G. Murphy (sister of the bride) was bridesmaid, and Mr. M. Walsh acted as best man.

The bride was given away by Mr. J. Dennison-Collins, and the marriage ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Father Phelan, was followed by Nuptial Mass. Miss K. Murphy (sister of the bride) was at the organ, and the soloist was Miss Rita Lynch. After the ceremony the bride's mother held a reception. The honeymoon is being spent in Kerry.

CHANCE FOR SONG-WRITERS

A country-wide search for new songs and new composers is to be conducted by Niall Boden on behalf of the Theatre Royal, Dublin. Every song submitted will be given an audition, but the works must be played by the composer. Several of the best will be selected and the composers will be invited to play or sing them for one week at the Royal for a nominal fee. Audiences will be the final judges and a prize of £10 will be awarded to the winner at the end of the week. All manuscripts should be accompanied by a stamped addressed envelope and sent to Niall Boden at the Theatre Royal.

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE OF CHARITABLE BEQUESTS.
In the Goods of
ELLEN DELANY WALSH, late of Seapark, 70 Saint Lawrence road, Clontarf, in the City of Dublin, Deceased.

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Statutes 30 and 31 Vic., Ch. 54, that the above-named Deceased, by her Will dated the 6th day of February, 1939, bequeathed the following charitable legacies:—

£50 to the Chinese Mission, Dalgan Park.
£50 to the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, Dublin.
£50 to the Revd. Father McMahon, Clontarf, for the celebration of Masses in Ireland for the repose of the soul of Testatrix.
£100 to the Revd. Father O'Keefe, Clontarf, for the celebration of Masses in Ireland for the repose of the soul of Testatrix
£25 to the Revd. Father Nolan, of Clontarf, for the celebration of Masses in Ireland for the repose of the soul of Testatrix
£25 to the Revd. Father Gunning, of Clontarf, for the celebration of Masses in Ireland for the repose of the soul of Testatrix.
£25 to the Revd. Father O'Gorman, of Skerries, County Dublin, for the celebration of Masses in Ireland for the repose of the soul of Testatrix.
£35 to the Parish Priest for the time being of Clontarf for the celebration in public of a Solemn Requiem High Mass for the repose of the soul of Testatrix.

Probate of the said Will was, on the 19th day of April, 1940, granted forth of the Principal Registry of the High Court of Justice (Probate), Eire, to Sarah M. Byrne, of 47 St. Lawrence road, Clontarf, Dublin, one of the Executors named in the said Will.

Dated this 17th day of June, 1940.

M. S. BERGIN and SON, Solicitors for the said Sarah M. Byrne, Executrix, 16 Dawson street, Dublin.

France in Suspense

The military situation in France continues to defy reasonable analysis. In spite of Marshal Pétain's announcement two days ago that "France must cease to fight," parts of the French Army are defending themselves with stubborn valour, and fighting seems to be in progress all along the line from Brittany to the Swiss frontier. Naturally, the Germans are advancing almost at their leisure. General Weygand's forces no longer are acting as an organised whole; and nobody was surprised yesterday to learn that the Germans had crossed the Loire at several points, and had established themselves in positions forty kilometres from Angers and fifty from Brest, France's great Atlantic port. Having agreed upon the terms on which an armistice will be granted to France, Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini seem to be in no hurry to disclose them. The German newspapers, over which Dr. Goebbels exercises a strict control, are completely silent on the subject; but the ever-obliging Dr. Gayda, whose frequent indiscretions often give a valuable clue to Italian policy, declared yesterday in his newspaper that, while the terms would be "severe," they would be fairer and more generous than the Treaty of Versailles. Hints that have been dropped in neutral countries, on the other hand, suggest that the dictators will be satisfied with nothing less than the complete capitulation of France, and the partial occupation of the country until accounts with Great Britain shall have been settled. In accordance with Germany's demands, Marshal Pétain has appointed two plenipotentiaries to receive Herr Hitler's terms. No place of meeting has been announced; but we should not be in the least surprised if Dr. Goebbels's sense of the dramatic should constrain him to suggest the railway siding in the forest of Compiègne where Marshal Foch and Admiral Weymss met the German plenipotentiaries in 1918. There has been no fighting of any consequence between the French and the Italians; yet it seems that Signor Mussolini's representatives will attend the armistice talks on equal terms with the Germans. The world already knows what Italy demands. Signor Mussolini probably will claim Nice, Savoy, Corsica, Tunisia and the port of Djibuti. If he gets them he will have achieved the easiest victory in all history; but before he will be able to take possession of new territory he will have to bring about the defeat of the British Fleet in the Mediterranean. If and when that object shall have been achieved, Signor Mussolini, subject to Herr Hitler's pleasure, will be in a position to help himself.

One of the most important factors in the present situation is the problem of the French fleet. There is not the slightest doubt that the Germans will demand its surrender, or immobilisation, as part of the price of an armistice; its acquisition would give them an enormous advantage in their forthcoming fight against Great Britain. On the other hand, it was reported yesterday that all the French warships in home ports had left for unknown destinations, and it is most unlikely that the British Admiralty will allow such a valuable weapon to fall into Germany's hands without a struggle. In the Eastern Mediterranean the French naval units already are under British command. Presumably those ships that took part in the withdrawal from Dunkirk also are under British control, and the British Government is not in the least likely to allow them to be taken over by the Germans. In a less degree the problem of France's Air Force corresponds with that of the Navy. Aeroplanes are fairly easy to destroy, and, while according to yesterday's reports, numerous machines have been making their way to North Africa, we should be surprised if many French fighters or bombers are handed over to the Germans. In the meanwhile the British are preparing for a long and bitter siege. Their great naval power is intact—actually it is greater than it was at the beginning of the war. They also have a mighty Air Force which is particularly strong in fighter machines. So far as one can see at present, the Germans would have much difficulty in an invasion of England by sea, although, in view of the way in which all preconceived ideas regarding strategy and tactics have been blown sky-high since the Blitzkrieg began, it is unsafe to dogmatise about anything. It may be assumed, however, that Britain will be attacked continuously from the air, in an effort, not only to cripple the ports and dislocate the transport services, but also to break the spirit of the people. Britain's idea, apparently, is to act on the defensive at first, staving off the German attacks with minimum loss to her own Air Force, and, with the help of supplies from the United States, to accumulate huge numbers of machines and trained pilots, until definite superiority in the air shall have been achieved. Much, of course, will depend upon the rate at which American supplies can be delivered. At the moment Germany has a large preponderance of strength in the air; but, in the nature of things, as Britain increases her numbers of pilots and machines, those of the Germans will be bound to decline. If the British can hold their enemies at bay until the end of the autumn, it would appear as if a German victory will become less and less likely. British sea-power is about to undergo its supreme and final test.

A National Government

Four days ago the leaders of three political parties of the twenty-six counties spoke from the same platform in College Green. That in itself was a great event—such an event as our country has not known for many a long year of estrangement—and, perhaps, we ought to be satisfied that the leaders have offered even so formal an evidence of mutual good-will. Yet, among the thousands who heard them speak on Sunday, there must have been many who hoped that a further step towards national unity would be taken. Exactly three years have passed since Mr. de Valera's Government came into power for the third time, and Mr. J. J. Cole, of Cavan—seconded by this newspaper—appealed for the formation of a National Government. The appeal was laughed to scorn in Dail Eireann, but it has become increasingly clear during those three intervening years—clearer than ever within the past ten months—that the nation's good demands the pooling of the country's best political brains, and we have not yet abandoned hope of a National Government. Yesterday the subject was raised in the Senate by Mr. J. G. Douglas, who approached it from the economic standpoint. Whatever happens in the European war, said Mr. Douglas, this country must "face a very serious economic situation in the near future"—an economic emergency which best can be met by a Government representative of all parties. Mr. Frank MacDermot held that a National Government was of vital importance. Sir John Keane demanded that the crisis should be met by "the best brains of the country united in a common cause": more, he held, was needed, than "going on a public platform together." It remained, however, for Professor Michael Tierney to make the most forcible speech of the day. "Even if we escape the military danger," said Professor Tierney, "we shall be faced with an economic danger before which the petty differences between Fianna Fail and Fine Gael will be the merest trifle. . . . We must have a National Government if we are going to survive as a people." These Senators were right; and we are sorry that several of the Government's spokesmen—Senators whose attitude often must be an embarrassment to the Government itself—took a narrow and unreal view of the subject. It is easy to describe the present Government as a "National Government," if one is satisfied to play with words; but the fact remains that—according, at least, to the figures of the last general election—it does not command the entire country's allegiance. The country has offered its firm loyalty to Mr. de Valera and his Ministers during these dark days; but how much deeper and more sincere would its faith be in a Government which was representative of every party. The citizen who voted for Mr. Cosgrave or Mr. Norton in 1938 is loyal to Mr. de Valera and his Fianna Fail Cabinet; would he not be more loyal to a Cabinet which should include the leaders of the very party for which he voted? Let us grant, with Mr. O'Kelly, that such a Cabinet might not work with the smoothness of the present, one-party Government. Surely, however, any lack of smoothness would be merely temporary, and would be more than counterbalanced by the example of unity which it would offer the people—the people of the six, as of the twenty-six, counties. We hope that Mr. O'Kelly has not spoken the Government's last word.

The Old School Tie

There has been a lot of nonsense talked about the old school tie, as the Earl of Derby remarked when speaking at Wellington College Speech Day recently. Such ridicule, indeed, has been poured on this once proud emblem that to-day any man who is in the least degree sensitive will not dare to don it, except on such very rare occasions as speech days, the Eton and Harrow cricket match, or the Oxford and Cambridge boat race. In its full glory, of course, the old school tie is a purely English institution. Ties may not mean much—or anything—in other countries, but in England, if it is the right kind of tie, it is a badge of honour ever whit as much as the Garter or the insigniæ of, say, a Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire, are badges of honour. Various unpleasant people for years, however, have been hurling accusations at these piebald, innocent-looking knots that they have been made to represent, unfairly, for their wearers a kind of free pass to all sorts of jobs, privileges, perquisites and occupations which are denied to the unfortunate multitude that is not able to sport the "right" knot. A man needs no references, it has been said; he carries them in his face. The complaint most generally made in England, on the other hand—among the aforesaid multitude, of course—is that employers no longer look at the face or at the sheaf of impeccable references so neatly filed together, but only at the stripes on his tie. A man's world and all his aspirations—or so the accusers say—are tied to his tie, and they rise or fall according to the "influence" exercised by that narrow strip of poplin. Whether it is these slanders or the gibes of the funny men in the music halls that Lord Derby dismisses as "nonsense," we are unable to say. A great deal of the ridicule that has been attached by the comedians is, indeed, unfortunate, for the wearing of a particular tie, as Lord Derby said, is something that combines a past memory with the present. It is something which enables men of all ages, who have come from the same school, to recognise each other at a glance—and many a lifelong friendship has been formed by the stray meeting of two brother ties. It is a kind of breed marking, like the "brick" head of a fox terrier, the stripes on the zebra, or the spots on a spotted leopard. Without the stripes, for instance, how could any decent zebra tell that his new acquaintance was not just a common donkey? As a reply to the slanders, of course, one could point out that the Empire, and particularly the battle of Waterloo, was won on the playing fields of Eton. The slanderers, on the other hand, could point out, with, perhaps, even greater truth, that if Britain loses the present war she will have lost it on the playing fields of Harrow. There would not be much "nonsense" in that statement.

Liquid Losses

Among recent warnings issued to Dublin householders is one against the use of a hose to water gardens. Everybody knows the playful manner in which some suburban gardeners prop up the nozzle in the centre of their brief estate so that they may have the suggestion of a fountain to temper the heat and burden of the day while, at the same time, bucking up the variegated flora. There are others who credit flowers with a chronic thirst far transcending that of any human dipsomaniac and are always ready to stand them a drink at the expense of the ratepayers: give this class a hose and a convenient tap and they will enjoy themselves for hours on end. It is against wasters like these—using the term strictly in the waterworks sense—that the City Manager's ukase was issued, and everybody who has not got a hose will endorse his decision heartily. At the same time his precautions will come to naught—will be but a drop in the reservoir, as it were—unless he takes immediate and serious cognisance of the "bucketeers." Devoted horticulturists answering to this description usually emerge from their homes in the late dusk of the summer evening with buckets containing about two gallons of water each, which are filled and refilled at the domestic faucet and emptied over the "front lawn" until it is considered that no grass plot or flower-bed possibly could desire another drop—or until the horticulturist gets bucketeer's elbow and has to retire for the night. Incidentally, tribute must be paid to the skill, daring and decorum with which thousands of eminently respectable suburban ladies manage to clamber over the garden railings which not one speculative builder in a thousand ever thinks of providing with a gate. It is possible, however, to admire the courage and devotion of all these people, who, apparently, are members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Flowers, founded by the Indian gentleman with the unpronounceable name, without feeling tempted to condone their reckless use of the communal water, and we would suggest that Mr. Hernon should take immediate steps to check their nocturnal exuberance. Places like the Botanic Gardens, which have streams running through their grounds, can afford to make a splash when watering the plants, but the suburbanite is in a different category, and, even if he lived by the banks of the Dodder or the Tolka, the last thing that would occur to him would be to take his watering supply from those burbling brooks. We have not yet reached the stage of less fortunate countries in which it has been necessary to advise householders to hoard water lest the ordinary supply should be cut off by air raids, but that is no reason why we should tolerate wanton waste of the precious liquid upon roadways, flower-beds, motor-cars, or in any other direction.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE GARRISON

The Times, in a leading article to-day, says:—The Dictators have followed the usual technique by demanding from the French Government the appointment of plenipotentiaries to hear the conditions on which hostilities in France can cease. These plenipotentiaries have, it is understood, been appointed, and it is to be feared negotiations is a very misleading word to describe the processes to which they are likely to be subjected. But it would serve no good purpose to speculate upon the course of events during the ensuing days or hours. It is only necessary at this stage to recall that the new French Foreign Minister has asserted that France will not accept dishonourable conditions, and that General de Gaulle, who has reached this country, has appealed to every French fighting man who succeeds in escaping oversea to get into touch with him, with a view to organising resistance elsewhere if the mainland of France should be totally lost.

Meanwhile, our duty is to turn this island into a fortress and a base for future operations. There is an ample supply of instructors, not only among those who have had experience of battle recently, but also among ex-Service men of all ranks, who have been urging for nine long months that some use should be made of their services. As for equipment, there are some forms of useful training which require hardly any equipment, and, though we may have to await the results of the present intensification of the armaments drive before vast additions can be made to the large forces already fully trained and equipped, much time can be saved by getting men ready for advanced training directly equipment is available.

There is every reason to believe, The Times adds, that with unceasing vigilance and effort this garrison can not merely repel the assaults of the enemy, but form the base for constant and successful assaults of our own. We can, indeed, be well satisfied with the results of the enemy's first air attack in force during Tuesday night. Conditions were exceptionally favourable for the spotting of targets. Yet the bombers did not serious military damage, and lost at least seven of their number. Nevertheless, it must be remembered that conditions were also exceptionally favourable for spotting and attacking the enemy. On darker nights interception will be more difficult, and even in the daytime, provided that there is cloud about, no air force can hope to prevent some of any large number of bombers getting through.

Every citizen is now a member of a garrison, not in the sense in which the Germans are already interpreting the phrase in an attempt to justify indiscriminate attacks, but in the sense that our first duty, if we cannot be combatants, is to avoid handicapping those who are combatants. A great part of the tragedy in France has been due to the absorption by the refugees of communications, accommodation, transport and food required by the combatants. Provided that the non-combatant section of our garrison refrains, or is prevented, from destroying both itself and the combatant section in this way, the enemy will try his worst in vain, and our own power of offensive action in this and other theatres of war will steadily mount and can be progressively exerted.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TURF CUTTING

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The present weather is most ideal for cutting and saving turf, and, if turf be cut and saved at once, there is every hope that it will be fit for removal from bogs while the passages into those bogs are still in fairly dry condition. As a rule, summer-like or somewhat summer-like weather may be necessary, in order to have bog passages dry enough for cartage of turf to public roads. That is why I urge the immediate cutting and saving of all turf possible.

Every available man, woman and child should at once be engaged in turf-cutting and saving. Even women and children who have never done the work before can be taught in half-an-hour what to do in saving turf. Even if men be engaged in harvest work, the women of every class and the holiday school-children should be able to save the nation by saving turf.

Town and city women and children can have most healthful holidays in the country saving turf.—Yours, etc.,

"MEDICAL OFFICER OF HEALTH."

"THE THREE SISTERS"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Luna O'Connor's gracious invitation to tea is not accepted. Tea is the curse of this country, and Irish cider does not go to the head. It is much more disturbing. The introduction of tea as a beverage has undermined the constitution of every nation indulging in the vice. Give me beer, dear Luna: it's good for you.

I have pleasant memories of Luna. She was quite a slim lady, with glowing cinematic hair. I first met her in Ebury street one moonlight night many years ago. I was much puzzled as to why she should leave her Noggin, and I was soon enlightened. From 121 Ebury street out popped jaunty George Moore. Notwithstanding the deceptive moonlight I recognised him on the instant, for he wore an Aubusson carpet around his neck, and it draped his shoulders prettily.

Now, who but a Luna could deem this a highbrow discussion! What is a highbrow? Roy Campbell says that he recollects an occasion when a man in Durban delivered a lecture on "Why I am a highbrow." His brow was invisible, and his only prominent feature an enormous posterior, which suggested the following lines:—

There once came a highbrow from Britain,
Whose praises can never be written,
So steep rose his high brow,
From his heel to his eye brow,
With a bump in the middle to sit on.

Yours, etc., OSCAR LOVE.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Irish Times, 20th June, 1915.

American Ammunition for Germany.

After an investigation at Bridgeport, Hartford and Waterbury, the arms and ammunition centres of the United States, the New York Herald reports that German agents are buying ammunition. It says that of the enormous output of ammunition 15 per cent. at Bridgeport, 12 per cent. at Hartford and 10 per cent. at Waterbury is bought and paid for by German manufacturers. It is presumed that the shipments are somehow reaching their destinations, as the agents continue to place orders. It is understood that the first shipment was despatched to South America, and thence to Holland and Denmark.

War Office Samples.

It may be of interest to Irish manufacturers to know that a considerable variety of clothing and other requirements of the War Office is on exhibition in the rooms of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, and it is hoped that the Irish manufacturers will avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing these samples and applying for particulars to the Assistant Secretary.

The Blockade.

The Admiralty issued yesterday the weekly statement of the number of British vessels sunk by hostile submarines. In the week ended 16th June eight British merchant and five British fishing vessels were sunk.

THE EARL OF ATHLONE

ARRIVAL IN NOVA SCOTIA

HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA, Wednesday.

The Earl of Athlone, the new Governor-General of Canada, arrived here from England to-day.

The Earl of Athlone was accompanied by Princess Alice. He left quickly for Ottawa, where he is to take the oath. His arrival was not marked by any ceremony, as war time restrictions prevented the ship bearing the Governor-General's party from wirelessing its time of arrival.—(Associated Press.)

LONDON LETTER

BRITAIN'S HEAVY WAR COSTS

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

HEAVY war costs are reflected in the British Exchequer return for the past fortnight, which shows total supply costs of £120,000,000, the amount for each week being about £60,000,000 compared with £40,000,000 a week for last month. The cost of the war is computed at between eight and nine million pounds a day. In view of the need for providing the army in Britain with adequate equipment, and of fitting out the half a million men enrolled in the Local Defence Volunteers, as well as providing additional machines for the Royal Air Force, and the instalments for warships now under construction, British war expenditure is not likely to fall below £8,000,000 a day for some time to come.

Marine Insurance Rates

Marine war risk insurance rates have undergone a sharp increase, the rates in some cases having been doubled. The London insurance market, however, still considers the Irish Sea a safe area, and the rate of fifteen shillings per cent. for the journey between the west coast and Eire remains unchanged. Local voyages in United Kingdom waters are to be the subject of negotiations, each individual trip to be considered on its merits. Rates for shipments between the United Kingdom and the East and the Far East have been increased from one hundred shillings to two hundred shillings per cent., while the rate to America has been advanced from one hundred shillings to one hundred and fifty shillings per cent. Voyages to the East and between America and Africa are to be made by way of the Cape; no voyages via the Mediterranean are being insured

Protection of Crops

In the course of the next three or four days British farmers are to be given detailed instructions about the protection of crops from incendiary bombs, the instructions having been worked out by Ministry of Agriculture experts on advice from the Ministry of Home Security. Farmers are directed to cut lanes 30 feet wide through green corn, across the direction of the prevailing wind and to put the cut green stuff into silage. It is suggested that harvesting should be so planned as to split up large areas of corn into smaller ones, and that stooks should be set up as far apart as possible. Ricks should be built away from farm buildings, and any stubble near them should be ploughed up. The British Government intends to have brought into cultivation many thousands of acres now lying useless by the compulsory cultivation of suitable land beside arterial roads and elsewhere, which in some cases may be held for building or other purposes. The order, which will be issued shortly, will not compel the ploughing-up of parks and golf courses, but these will have to be used for grazing. The intention is that no piece of waste or unused ground shall be passed over if it can produce foodstuffs in any form.

Wheat Supplies

The British Isles can regard the situation with equanimity so far as supplies of what are concerned. Conditions in Britain, while somewhat uneven, are generally favourable. There will be an increased acreage this year, and a still further increase next year. Small lots of wheat are being purchased regularly from the United States, and many cargoes of wheat and other grains, previously consigned to the Netherlands, Belgium and Denmark, are being diverted to Britain and accumulated. The Canadian crop has been sown on what is believed to be a record acreage, the chief difficulty being that of moisture, which is only about 75 per cent. of the normal amount. Britain now is virtually the sole remaining market for Canadian wheat, a circumstance that may lead Canada to abandon her policy of an open grain market in favour of a Grain Control Board.

How War Hits Brazil

The collapse of France will affect Brazil very heavily, France having been the world's biggest coffee consumer after the United States, with Belgium coming third. Even with France and Belgium taking supplies, there remained a substantial surplus of Brazilian coffee, and plans had been made to burn some 25 per cent. of the complete crop. The situation now becomes acute. It is recognised that the Brazilian Government's buy-and-burn policy will be quite inadequate to cope with the position. It seems a little unfortunate that more coffee cannot be used in Britain, but its use is almost unknown among the working classes.

B.B.C. Programmes

The British Broadcasting Corporation's programmes now are subject to alteration at any moment. Those which were topical to-day are out of date to-morrow. Usually the programmes are planned six weeks ahead, but such a system cannot work with events moving as swiftly as they do nowadays. Last minute alterations have to be made. The Director-General himself has thought it advisable to postpone a talk which he was to have given to the Services. When grave news has been received light items have been dropped without notice. It is said that the solution to this state of affairs is to have in readiness recorded programmes which can be put into operation at any moment and which will be suitable in any emergency.

To Safeguard Sheep

It is not only children that are being transferred from vulnerable areas of Britain. Sheep now are being moved to pasture land in the home counties, the biggest movement being that of 100,000 sheep from a well-known grazing centre. All the ewes and lambs are moved in lorries, one of the greatest problems of the transit being to ensure that every mother arrives at her new home with her own lamb. The utmost care is taken to prevent the ewes from being separated from their young. The transfer is an experiment, but it is believed that it will work out satisfactorily. It has been usual to remove sheep from their feeding ground in the winter, and as this does them no harm, it is assumed that it will be quite safe to remove them in the summer.

In Aid of Lifeboat Service

As a result of the wireless appeal for the Lifeboat Service, made on April 21 by Coxswain Robert Cross, of the Humber, the Royal National Lifeboat Institution has received £5,587 17s. 11d. The responses have been coming in every day for eight weeks past; there have been over 11,000 of them. They have come from all parts of England, Scotland Wales and Northern Ireland; some have come from Eire and two from France. The gifts have varied from threepence to £100.

FRANCE KEPT WAITING FOR PEACE TERMS

PLENIPOTENTIARIES TO HEAR CONDITIONS

Axis Powers May Demand Total Disarmament

FRENCH NAVAL AND AIR FLEET PUZZLE

THREE days after Marshal Petain had approached Germany for discussions "as between soldiers and in honour" on "means to end hostilities," France yesterday was still unaware of the terms which the Axis dictators decided, at Munich on Tuesday, should be demanded.

Meanwhile the French troops fought doggedly on in a series of rearguard actions, delaying the progress of the German mechanised forces, while the Axis Press and radio made threats as to what the dictators aim at doing to France and the French Empire.

When the French Cabinet met yesterday they had before them a message from the German Government, which had been transmitted by the Spanish Ambassador to France. All this message said was that Germany was ready to make known its conditions for a cessation of hostilities as soon as the names of the French plenipotentiaries had been made known.

NAMES NOT MADE KNOWN

The Cabinet Council appointed its plenipotentiaries, but their number and names have not been disclosed.

The message from the Reich declared that it would, in due course, name the date and place for the reception of these plenipotentiaries. They will then be informed of the Axis terms, and—as they will be armed with full powers—they will be expected to accept them or reject them straightaway.

The semi-official Havas Agency pointed out that as the communication gave no indication of the conditions, and that hostilities will end only when agreement has been reached on them, several days, therefore, may pass before fighting ceases in France.

Meanwhile, reports from outposts of the French Empire show a growing determination not to accept terms not consonant with honour.

CAPITULATION "PURE AND SIMPLE"?

The view in Berlin is stated by neutral sources to be that, since fighting is continuing, nothing short of capitulation "pure and simple" will be acceptable.

It is also indicated that the intention is to disarm France completely and to occupy her territory in part until the end of the conflict. It is emphasised that France must be prevented from giving assistance to Britain.

The United States, in a message to Germany yesterday, said that she would not stand idly by if the Axis Powers attempted to parcel out French possessions in the Western hemisphere.

According to information in Madrid, virtually all French naval units left French ports during Tuesday, says the "New York Times" Correspondent in the Spanish capital.

French aeroplanes are reported in the Spanish Press to have been sighted on their way to Africa to avoid falling into German hands.

M. Lebrun, the French President, in reply to a message from Queen Wilhelmina yesterday, said that France retains the certainty that the heroic efforts of the Allied Armies will not have been in vain, and that in that lies the assurance of a future of freedom for Europe.

Preparations are proceeding for a meeting of both French Houses of Parliament, says a "Times" message, quoted by the Press Association.

ITALIAN DECLARATIONS

It was announced in Washington that the United States State Department had instructed its representatives in Berlin and Rome yesterday to notify the German and Italian Governments of American opposition to the transfer of colonies in the Western hemisphere.

An earlier message from a reliable source in Rome said that the United States was invoking the Monroe Doctrine, and had warned Italy that America would not countenance German or Italian interference with British or French possessions in the Western hemisphere.

The future of France's West Indies possessions was primarily in the mind of Washington officials.

NEAR BREST

Meanwhile the war-worn French soldiers fought on with undiminished gallantry against the more powerful German forces with no essential changes in the French position as given in Tuesday night's communiqué

The Rome radio claimed yesterday that German troops had reached a point 50 kilometres (31 miles) from Brest, the French Atlantic port.

The Germans claimed that a German spearhead was advancing towards Lyons. All the time, despite the Petain Government's efforts to free the roads, the exodus of refugees continued. Refugees arriving at Irun yesterday said that thousands were jamming the Spanish Consulates in France, seeking visas to enter Spain.

KING LEOPOLD'S CHILDREN

Among those who crossed the Franco-Spanish frontier during Tuesday night were King Leopold's three children, who are on their way to Portugal, and M. Van Zeeland, former Belgian Premier.

Diplomatic and Consular officials of several nations were among the party.

A message from La Linea, on the Gibraltar frontier, states that the British Consul there has ordered all British subjects to report to the Consulate within forty-eight hours, announcing that those failing to do so will be deprived of British citizenship.

GERMAN CIRCLES SILENT

BERLIN, Wednesday.

As Germany claimed the capture of almost half of France, official circles to-night maintained the strictest silence regarding the conditions of peace being offered the French Government.

The "great significance" of the steps towards the "capitulation of France" were cited as the reason for secrecy.

"WILL NOT ESCAPE"

"France will not escape atonement," declared the Berlin Boersen Zeitung, in a banner headline. "It has to bear the consequences of its defeat and of its politics," the paper said.

"And now for England," was the heading the Voelkischer Beobachter gave to an article on the latest events.—(Associated Press.)

GERMAN FLAG OVER STRASBOURG CATHEDRAL

BERLIN, Wednesday.

A German High Command announcement states:—

"Luneville and the fortress of Toul have been taken.

"The German flag is flying above the Cathedral of Strasbourg."—(Press Association War Special.)

PUSHING ALONG THE CHANNEL COAST

DOUBLE GERMAN ADVANCE ON LYONS

BORDEAUX, Wednesday.

The Germans are making a push westwards, apparently to seize the whole of the Channel coast so as to increase their threat to Britain, it is declared in a commentary on the military situation issued by the Havas Agency to-night.

The French armies, separated at various points, still form four groups. From information received early this afternoon, the Germans are continuing efforts in the west, bringing pressure to bear on the first French Army group in the region of Rennes in the direction of St. Malo. It would seem that the Germans, instead of pushing down towards Nantes, intend to gain possession of the coast right along the Channel.

Fighting is continuing in the region of Avranches, to the east of Mont Saint Michel.

"FRANCE MAY ATTEMPT TO FIGHT ON"

BORDEAUX, Wednesday.

A variety of reports were circulating here to-night, mostly converging on rumours that France may attempt to fight on.

Other reports—not conflicting—were that Germany's terms had become known and were unacceptable.—(Associated Press.)

In the region which separates the army in Brittany from the army on the Loire Germans did not exert any great pressure. Early this afternoon they were still some 25 miles from Angers. On the Loire the Germans attacked at several points between Orleans and Nevers. They succeeded in occupying several bridgeheads on the other side of the river. But it can be said that, in general, the French are holding on the Loire, particularly in the region of Tours.

From Nevers and Sancerre to the Swiss frontier the situation is very confused. French resistance in this region is very weak. The exact position of the French and German units is uncertain. Several German columns are marching on Bourges.

TOWARDS LYONS

Considerable forces are being thrown into the Valley of the Allier with the aim of taking Lyons from the rear.

The German Army, which has occupied Chalons-sur-Saone, has slowed down its advance in the direction of Lyons, doubtless to co-ordinate its efforts with those of the columns in the Valley of the Allier. All that is known of the army of the East is that it is going on fighting. As for the army of the Alps, it has not yet had to defend itself against German or Italian attacks.—(P.A. War Special.)

GERMAN PUSH CONTINUES

BORDEAUX, Wednesday.

The official French war communiqué issued here to-night states:—

"In Brittany the enemy is pushing forward in the direction of Nantes.

"To the south of the Middle Loire our troops withdrew and the enemy has reached the Cher at certain points.

"Further east he pushed elements in the direction of Roanne, Lyon and Amberieux.

"Operations continue in Alsace and in South Lorraine."—(P.A. War Special.)

FRANCE IS SHORT OF FOOD

Wednesday.

The French radio announced to-day that, to face difficulties of food supply, the Government had ordered further restrictions in the consumption of bread, sugar and meat, especially in restaurants and cafés.

The French radio stated to-night that the Germans have crossed the River Loire at several points. They were about 40 kilometres (about 25 miles) from Angers, and had penetrated into the region of Tours.

Angers is about 50 miles from Tours.—(Associated Press.)

NO GERMAN DEMANDS ON JAPAN

PACIFIC ISLANDS ASSURANCE

TOKYO, Wednesday.

A reliable source stated to-night that Germany had notified Japan that she would not include the Japanese mandated islands in the Pacific among Germany's colonial demands in the general peace conference.—(Associated Press.)

ROME NEWSPAPER ON "THE TERMS"

"SEVERE, BUT FAIRER THAN VERSAILLES"

BERLIN, Wednesday.

The conditions offered to France, although severe, will be fairer than those imposed at the end of the last war, states the Giornale d'Italia, commenting on the Munich meeting between Hitler and Mussolini, according to a Rome dispatch received by the official German News Agency.

The paper writes: "In connection with the conditions offered to France at the moment it can only be said that, although necessarily severe, they will be more generous and fairer than those which were treacherously imposed by Wilson's 14 points upon the tired but undefeated German and Italian nations.

"It must not be forgotten to-day that by the Treaty of Versailles Germany and Austria were deprived of almost 10 million people of German blood, and that Germany was robbed of all her colonies.

"Nor must it be forgotten that Italy, in spite of its lack of space, also had its colonies wrested from it. Meanwhile, large and satiated British and French Empires absorbed new territories, which they were not able either to populate or to colonise in the next twenty years.

"The new order in Europe will necessarily restore national unity, a fair distribution of overseas possessions and political equilibrium. These are the conditions for a long European and world peace."—(Press Association War Special.)

"GERMAN ARMS CHOOSE THE LANGUAGE"

A further attack on France was broadcast by the German wireless last night. Referring to the broadcast in French from London by General de Gaulle, the announcer said:—"This speech is significant, because it was made at a time when other Frenchmen were trying to evoke pity for France. Language of this kind is untimely.

"German arms choose the language, and will speak as long as the Fuehrer thinks fit. They speak a language that knows no touching recollections and sentimentalities. They will lay the foundations of a peaceful and happy Europe for the young nations.

"Such a Europe will finally be freed from

LATE NEWS

MORE AIR RAIDERS OVER BRITAIN

WARNINGS SOUNDED IN MANY TOWNS

The British Air Ministry issued the following communiqué late last night:—

"The enemy aircraft crossed our East and South coasts late to-night.

"Air raid warnings were sounded in a number of districts.

"Anti-aircraft defences are in action at several points."

For the second night in succession air raid warnings were sounded in widely separated parts of England.

Sirens were sounded at one town on the South coast; at three others on the South-East coast, and at three places near the North-East coast.

At one South-East coast town searchlights swept the sky from many points shortly after the alarm was sounded R.A.F. fighter 'planes were heard.

At another South-East coast town searchlights were active and wardens were out on duty, but no 'plane was seen.

Numerous aircraft were heard off the East coast before an air raid warning was given before midnight. After the sirens had faded away all was quiet for nearly half an hour, and then a 'plane, apparently British, flew along the coast and turned inland. The searchlights made no attempt to pick it up.

An air-raid warning was also sounded in an area in the east coast of Scotland. The "all-clear" signal was given half-an-hour later.

BOMBS DROPPED

'Planes flying high were heard repeatedly during the night in a south coast area. The thud of bombs, which dropped at intervals, was heard. Searchlights went into action, and at times anti-aircraft fire was intense. During one of these actions a 'plane was picked out, and tracer bullets could be seen going to the 'plane. Shellfire burst all round the 'plane, but it was not possible to see if it was hit.

Bombs were seen to fall from German 'planes in North-East England, and later distant explosions rattled windows.

A large force of German aircraft which flew high over South-East England early to-day appeared to wheel northward after crossing the coast. Coastal guns remained silent.

In north-east England no civilian casualties were reported. The raid lasted five hours.

BORDEAUX BOMBED FOUR TIMES

NEW YORK, Thursday.

A French radio broadcast picked up here stated that Bordeaux was bombed four times after 1.30 this morning.—(Associated Press).

GERMAN RADIO STATIONS SILENT

HAMBURG AND BREMEN STOP AT MIDNIGHT

For the third night running the programmes of the Hamburg and Bremen Wireless Stations were interrupted last night. Both stations were off the air at 12.15 a.m.

Hamburg had been broadcasting an hour earlier, but Bremen was also silent then.—(Press Association War Special.)

ALLEGED PLOT TO SEIZE CANADA

"SOME TIME IN 1940"

MONTREAL, Wednesday.

Canadian Fascists planned to take over Canada "some time in 1940," according to documents seized in recent police raids, and introduced to-day, when charges were heard against Adrien Arcand, the "Canadian Fuehrer," and others.

The accused men are alleged to belong to the National Unity Party, which the Federal Government has outlawed.

The Crown Prosecutor stated that the plan covered eight pages and detailed minutely how the Dominion's finances would be handled.

Another document seized said that the party would have a "trained, uniformed army of 70,000 men in canada if its ambitions were realised."

Letters which Arcand is alleged to have received from persons in Germany and Italy were also produced.—(Press Association Foreign Special.)

TWO MINERS KILLED IN PIT FALL

After digging all day and through the night, rescue workers recovered the body of George Hall (20), of Benson road, Sheffield, a miner, who was killed by a fall of roof at Nunnery Colliery, Sheffield.

Earlier the body of Charles Nall, of Manor Estate, Sheffield, had been recovered. Six others were injured.

THE ARMING OF INDIA

PURCHASES TO BE MADE IN UNITED STATES

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

NEW DELHI, Wednesday.

India is sending a representative at once to the United States to place orders for arms on behalf of the Government of India. This was announced by the Viceroy, Lord Linlithgow, in a nation-wide broadcast to-night.

Announcing the expansion of India's defences to the highest pitch, the Viceroy foreshadowed an immediate programme for purchasing arms abroad. It was to accelerate this that the special emissary was being sent to America.

He appealed to all communities temporarily to sink political differences and help in the united war effort to secure the safety of India against aggression.

ARMOURED VEHICLES PLAN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SIMLA, Wednesday.

In connection with the expansion of the Indian armed forces recently announced here, the Indian Government, it is understood, has under consideration a scheme for the construction in India of armoured vehicles on Canadian chassis.

The scheme would come into operation shortly.

BODENSTOWN MEETING BANNED

Notice of the prohibition, under the Offences Against the State Act, of the public meeting arranged by Sinn Fein, to be held at Bodenstown, Co. Kildare, on Sunday next, appears in our advertising columns to-day. The notice is inserted by Chief Superintendent N. Murphy, of the Civic Guards, Naas.

LORD LOTHIAN'S PLEA TO U.S.

"Send Everything Quickly"

TIDE TURNED BY CHRISTMAS

"WE are grateful to you for the help you have sent us—for the arms, aeroplanes and machines. We want everything you can send us as quickly as you can send it," declared Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, speaking to-day at Yale University, according to a Press Association Foreign Special from Newhaven, Connecticut, last night.

"If we can hold out until Christmas," Lord Lothian continued, "we can prove that Hitler, with all his brutal violence, cannot break our spirit or conquer our island. We shall, I believe, have turned the tide, for Hitler cannot go on for ever. The issue will probably be decided this year in six months, and not next year or in two years or three years."

Hence he warned the United States: "The outcome of the struggle will affect you almost as much as it will affect us, for if Hitler gets our fleet or destroys it the whole foundation upon which the security of both our countries has rested for 120 years will have disappeared."

ATLANTIC DEFENCE

Many in the United States believed that if Britain was invaded and overrun, the British Navy would cross the Atlantic and be still available, through Canada or otherwise, as part of the United States' defence system.

"I hope you are not building on that expectation," he added. "It would make the greatest difference on which side of the Atlantic the British Fleet was based."

So long as the British Fleet was able to guard the English Channel, the Straits of Gibraltar, etc., America had no serious problem of Atlantic defence

But "the security of the Americas would be entirely different if these exits and bases were held by a great Imperialist Power unfriendly to democracy or to the Monroe system."

The only way America could avoid being beaten permanently in the armament race by the Totalitarian States was for the armaments factories in Britain and the Commonwealth, and, if still possible, of the French Empire, to be on their side, and not on the side of Hitler and his friends.

"It is now only a question of a day, or at the most a few weeks, before Hitler seems likely to attempt to do to Britain what he has already done to France. He will attack us from the North, the East and the South by aeroplane and invasion."

Lord Lothian said that he did not want the United States, should a crisis for her arise, to turn round and say, "Why didn't you warn us of these facts so we were able to think about them before it was too late?"

NO PESSIMISM

"I do not want to give a pessimistic impression," he declared. "I am not pessimistic at all. I only plead for realism and honesty in looking facts in the face instead of for silence or evasion.

"We in the British Empire are not downhearted. Our people will give a good account of themselves if Hitler's legions attempt to effect a landing, for we believe that the independence of Britain is literally the last bastion of freedom in the world to-day."

NO COLONY TRANSFERS

NEW WARSHIPS FOR BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.

The State Department has ordered United States representatives in Berlin and Rome to notify the German and Italian Governments, respectively, of the opposition of the United States to the transfer of any western hemisphere possessions from one non-American Power to another.

The Governments of Britain, France and the Netherlands have been similarly notified.

The transfer to Britain of ten torpedo boats and ten submarine chasers, announced this morning, was in keeping with President Roosevelt's promise to provide all possible aid for the Allies, it was stated at the White House to-day.

The vessels, which were nearing completion for the United States Navy, and which are to be re-sold to Britain, were manufactured largely from British designs.

The United States Navy Department, in making the announcement of the transfer, announced that the U.S. Navy had agreed to take delivery of later models.—Press Association War Special.

BACKS TO THE WALL

MR. DUFF COOPER CONFIDENT

BRITAIN'S SUPPLIES INEXHAUSTIBLE

MR. A. DUFF COOPER, British Minister of Information, in a broadcast last night, said that they were fighting with their backs to the wall, but they had beaten off invaders in the past, and would do so now.

THE FRENCH PEOPLE

He referred to the French demand for an armistice on honourable terms, and said that they could rest assured that the French people would not allow themselves to be reduced permanently to a state of slavery. In the fullness of time their country and their liberty would be restored to them.

"We shall feel confident that the people of this island will be able to defend it against all the might and malice of Germany. We shall be fighting with our backs to the wall, but it is a very substantial wall we have behind us. It is called the Atlantic Ocean, and it stretches from the Old World to the New."

SOURCES OF SUPPLIES

On the other side of that ocean, Canada was throwing herself into the task of producing implements of war and training men; and south of that Dominion was America, the greatest source of supply in the whole world, and south of the United States were American Republics well disposed towards Great Britain.

"We have, therefore, behind us an inexhaustible source of supply that has been generously placed at our disposal. We have only to beat off the invader—hold him at bay for a few months—and our supplies will begin to increase as rapidly as his diminish.

WITHIN THE FORTRESS

"We are nearly all inside the fortress now—the fortress is well defended and well supplied, and will hold out until the efforts of the enemy are exhausted."

300 ITALIANS IN BORDER CLASH

250 OF THEM TAKEN PRISONER

BRITISH MAKE BIG HAUL OF EQUIPMENT

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

CAIRO, Wednesday.

A LATER military communiqué issued in Cairo to-night on the subject of Monday's Libyan border clash said that the action lasted only a few minutes, the Italians surrendering after suffering their first casualties. More than 250 prisoners were taken, and all their equipment captured, including light tanks, lorries and four field guns.

The earlier communiqué stated: "On June 17 hostile motor transport columns, with an estimated strength of four guns and 300 camouflaged infantry, and escorted by light tanks, was met by a party of British armoured fighting vehicles. The resulting action went entirely in our favour.

"The superior armament of the British tanks so completely demoralised the enemy that some of the crew even left their tanks, with disastrous results to themselves. Enemy casualties in this engagement are believed to have been between 20 and 30 killed, a number wounded, and some taken prisoner.

"There were no British casualties.

"The deterrent effect of the Egyptian anti-aircraft guns largely accounted for the wild aiming and lack of positive results of Italian air action."

DESERT WARFARE

WHY SILENCE IS OBSERVED

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

CAIRO, Wednesday.

Commenting on the scarcity of news from the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, a Staff officer from G.H.Q. said to-day that this was only to be expected in order not to divulge information that the enemy wants to know.

He added that one of the few advantages of desert warfare was that in the theatre of war the auditorium was empty.

ITALIAN SOMALILAND

BRITISH RAID ON A POST

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL

NAIROBI, Wednesday.

An account of a raid carried out against the Italian post at El Wak, on the Italian Somaliland frontier, by troops of the King's African Rifles, is given in this morning's communiqué issued here. The communiqué reads:—

"At dawn on Tuesday a raid was carried out against the Italian post at El Wak, on the Italian Somaliland frontier, by troops of the King's African Rifles, supported by a Southern Rhodesian contingent of the R.A.F.

"Although full details are not available, considerable damage was done to the post. The enemy were obviously surprised, and later counter-attacked our troops, who, after completing their task, withdrew over the border.

"Our reported casualties are two African other ranks.

"On withdrawing our troops were bombed by two Italian Caproni aircraft, but so far no damage whatsoever has been reported.

"On the rest of the front all was quiet on Tuesday."

ABYSSINIA AND ALBANIA

Mr. R. A. Butler (British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs), yesterday, told the House of Commons that in view of Italy's unprovoked entry into the war, the Government held itself entitled to reserve full liberty of action in respect of any undertakings given by them to the Italian Government.

Representations regarding the Government's holding itself free to consider any proposals that might be laid before it by His Majesty Haile Selassie, and as to the question of recognition of Italian sovereignty over Albania, would be borne in mind.

COURTMARTIAL FOR CIVILIANS

WIDE POWERS TAKEN IN NEW BILL

When moving the second stage of the Emergency Powers (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill in the Dail yesterday,

Mr. G. BOLAND, Minister for Justice, said that the bill provided for the courtmartial of persons not subject to military law. The Government would not have brought in such a bill if they did not think it absolutely essential at a time like the present.

The intention was to put on this Court—under Order to be issued when the bill passed—three members of the present Special Criminal Court who were the most experienced men they could get for courts of this kind.

Mr. DILLON (F.G., Monaghan) said it was expedient to say as a matter of record that the gravity and character of the bill were not lost sight of, and that in normal times when the nation was not threatened by any great danger, no representative assembly would give power analagous to those now being given to the Government. It was with the full appreciation of the magnitude of those powers, and the distance they had been asked to go that they consented to the bill. They did it only because they were assured by the Government that those wide powers were necessary for the safety of the State. In that knowledge they gave them those powers, believing that this democracy was capable of using such powers for the protection of the State and the ultimate preservation of the liberties of all.

The bill was passed through all its stages.

BRITISH CHILDREN FOR DOMINIONS

SHIPS TO SAIL ALMOST IMMEDIATELY

Plans are ready, says the Press Association Lobby Correspondent, for sending the first batch of 20,000 children from Britain to the shelter of the Dominions for the duration of the war. 10,000 are expected to go to Canada, 5,000 to Australia, and several thousand each to New Zealand and South Africa. As yet there is no scheme for the United States of America, but indications are that the scheme will be taken up there most generously. Offers have been received from private organisations in the United States.

The emigrants—who will be between five and sixteen years of age and will come from all classes of the community—will sail almost immediately. Doctors and trained nurses will be in charge of them.

All the children will be brought back after the war. Free passages will be given both ways across the sea.

Separate claims for a 10s. wage advance for ship-building and engineering employés in Britain have been sent to the employers by the Confederation of Ship-building and Engineering Unions. An equivalent increase is asked for piece workers.

RESIGNATIONS IN THE NORTH

Government Taken To Task

LORD CRAIGAVON'S CHALLENGE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Wednesday.

THERE was another surprise in the Northern Parliament to-day when Lieutenant-Colonel A. R. G. Gordon announced his resignation as Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Finance, owing to disagreement with the Government in regard to their defence policy, which he regarded as inadequate.

Mr. Edmund Warnock, K.C., a few weeks ago resigned from the position of Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Home Affairs for the same reason.

Col. Gordon urged the immediate formation of a new Government with drive and initiative.

Mr. Warnock announced on Tuesday that he would table a motion of "no confidence" in the Government for Tuesday next, and Mr. J. Beattie (Labour) has put down a motion, also for Tuesday, which declares that the House views with alarm the continued refusal of the Government to cooperate with all parties in the House for the formation of an all-party Government for the duration of the war.

"THE SANDS HAVE RUN OUT"

At the beginning of the business Colonel Gordon asked leave to make a personal statement. He said:

"I have to inform the House that I sent in my resignation to the Government as Financial Secretary to the Ministry of Finance on Thursday, June 13. On Sunday I flew to England, as it seemed to me the sands were running out. I make no secret of the fact that I was at Whitehall. The sands have run out. The danger to this country is certain, and cannot long be delayed. The Government here, as at present constituted, is, by nature of its personnel, its lack of drive and initiative, and utter lack of what war means (I have excepted certain members of the Government), is quite unfitted to sustain the people in the ordeal that is before us. What right have they to remain?"

Colonel Gordon went on to say: "The Government should resign and be reconstituted immediately. To wait for a debate on Tuesday next, with all that may be said and tempers raised, would be criminal.

GIVING ALL IRELAND A LEAD

"I say: Go now. Let a new Government meet this House on Tuesday next, resolved to give Ulster, and indeed all Ireland, a lead. Two cities in this country have stood seige—Derry and Limerick, both in different causes. There is only one cause now—with God's help, to maintain Christianity and freedom.

"Mr. Speaker, I will say no more, for fear I say too much."

Mr. J. Brown (Independent) said that the supreme necessity for them all at present was to keep their heads. The Prime Minister had kept his head, and they had no better asset at present than that fact.

The Prime Minister said that he was somewhat surprised at the speech of Colonel Gordon. He did not think that this was the time for people to run away from the Government which they had been serving.

"I think," he said, "he could have served Ulster better if he had remained and carried out the duties which he has kindly undertaken in connection with the Ulster Defence Volunteers. At the same time he made the suggestion that the Government should resign, and that a fresh Government should be formed. Well, we can only form a Government from those who are members of the House. If I am to take the pick of the House and form a Government it would be exactly the same right hon. gentlemen who have supported me in the past years loyally and well."

The Premier went on to say that Colonel Gordon had suggested that the Government should be run on such lines that it would cooperate as an all-Ireland affair.

Colonel Gordon—No, sir; I did not.

Lord Craigavon—I could not quite grasp what he said.

Colonel Gordon repeated that a new Government should meet the House on Tuesday resolved to give Ulster and, indeed, all Ireland a lead.

DELICATE GROUND

Lord Craigavon—When it comes to the question of all Ireland I have to point out to Colonel Gordon that he is treading on extremely delicate ground, because the South of Ireland has declared neutrality. That spells something to me very, very sad and objectionable.

Proceeding, Lord Craigavon said: "I can only state that I am literally daily in touch with the British Government on the matter of common defence of the United Kingdom, which does not include Eire, and in that, of course, naturally this Government cannot interfere in any one way."

Answering Colonel Gordon's charge that the Government had been too slow, Lord Craigavon claimed that they had not been so slow as the people in Britain, because the moment that the signal of danger had been given the Government had been able to institute the Ulster Defence Volunteers, get it raised and arm it, and, as Colonel Gordon must admit, that force was going to form a valuable force for the assistance of the military authorities if there was an invasion of this part of the United Kingdom.

The Prime Minister indicated that the Defence Volunteers would be expanded still further as equipment was secured. It was the duty of the people to support the Government which was in power, he said, and to do all they could to strengthen the Government's hands, instead of using small shot in their back at a crisis like this.

UNEASINESS

He knew that there was uneasiness among the people, but the remedy suggested by Colonel Gordon was a change of Government. He could not remember exactly since the war started how many changes there had been in France, for instance, and where had it led France? It had led France to a situation now which had gravely imperilled the whole of Europe. He did not really think it would be serving the Ulster people if they were to retire and make way for those who had not some experience of government.

> "Whether at present I am the proper person to lead the Ulster people, I may say I will give way to no one except the real authority for removing the leader of the Ulster people, and, if that takes place, then I am quite prepared to lay down the reins of office and let somebody else take them up."

Colonel Gordon gave several instances of how the organisation of defence was hampered by the Home Office, which was slow in answering letters and coming to decisions which he described as "damnable" in present circumstances.

Mr. T. Henderson (Ind. U.) said that the members of the front bench should have the manliness to retire to enable the Prime Minister to put new faces in the Cabinet. Nothing short of a Government representative of all parties would satisfy the people of Northern Ireland at the present time.

"If something is not done on Tuesday next," he declared, "it is my intention deliver my final speech in this House and abstain from further attendance, because I could then only come to the conclusion that coming here will serve no useful purpose."

FACING THE FACTS

Mr. Fred Thompson (U.) said that he felt the time had come when they should all rise above all bitterness, above party feeling and above self. They had to turn round and face the facts.

"We must have a Government above party and above creed at the present time. Every constructive force should be given the opportunity to express itself. There never was a time when we had such opportunities. We ought to work together against the common enemy, because I think we all realise the enemy is within the gates almost."

Mr. Warnock, K.C. (U.) said that he still maintained that the Prime Minister was the natural leader of the Ulster people. He personally did not want office in any Government. He had had his fill of office.

Proceeding, he referred to the "unworthy taunt" of the Prime Minister, who declared yesterday that he (Mr. Warnock) had run away at the first shot. He hoped the Prime Minister regretted this remark. When he had resigned he relinquished not only his salary, which did not matter to him, but prospects which might be described as bright.

The House adjourned.

KILDARE CHORAL FESTIVAL

A LARGE CONGREGATION

From Our Correspondent.

KILDARE, Wednesday.

The annual Festival Service of the Kildare and Glendalough Diocesan Choral Union was held in St. Brigid's Cathedral, Kildare, to-day, the jubilee of the festival. The massed choirs of the Diocese, with Canon T. W. E. Drury (Precentor, St Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin) at the organ, gave an excellent rendering of the sacred music, and there was a very large congregation. In the first anthem, the "Hymn of Peace" (Calcott), the soprano work was markedly effective. The second anthem was "God is Our Hope and Strength" (A. H. Brewer). The Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis were sung to Stainer's settings in E flat. The First Lesson (2 Chron. xxv.) was read by the Rev. Precentor Clover, B.D., and the second one (Revelation xiv.) by the Rev. B. Handy.

The Service was intoned by the Rev. E. F. B. Moore, and the Dean of Kildare (the Very Rev. G. F. Graham) read the prayers.

The Archbishop of Dublin (Most Rev. Dr. Barton) was the preacher, and he also pronounced the Benediction.

The clergy present included:—Prebendary C. R. Kitching, the Venerable G. W. Peacocke, the Rev. Canon G. Wilson, the Dean of St. Patrick's, Rev. Chancellor J. R. Goff, Rev. Precentor Clover, Rev. Canon H. McClenahan, the Dean of Kildare, Rev. J. R. Crooks, Rev. F. Empy, Rev. H. Acheson, Rev. G. V. Jourdan, Rev. E. F. B. Moore, Rev. C. R. Milligan, Rev. J. B. S. McGinley, Rev. H. B. Eaton, Rev. Canon L. Fletcher, Rev. C. P. Fisher, Rev. E. S. H. Campbell, Rev. B. Northridge, Rev. A. C. Benson, Rev. W. F. Benson, Rev. J. W. Armstrong, Rev. Dudley H. Clarke, Rev. Succentor E. Owen, Rev. J. H. Ruby, Rev. A. D. Buchanan, Rev. K. Dunlop, Rev. A. V. Smyth, Rev. J. F. Crooks, and Rev. E. N. Neill.

BRITISH LINER MINED

SANK IN TWENTY MINUTES

From Reuter's Correspondent.

WELLINGTON, Wednesday.

A mine had been discovered in the locality where the British liner, Niagara, sank in the Tasman Sea last night, Mr. P. Fraser, the Prime Minister, announced in the House of Representatives to-day. All necessary steps were being taken to dispose of the menace. Passengers and crew had reached port. As far as could be ascertained, there was no loss of life.

Air Vice-Marshal S. J. Goble, Australian Air Liaison Officer, and Mrs. Goble were among the passengers on board the Niagara, a 13,415-ton vessel, owned by the Canadian-Australian Line, and registered in London.

According to an Associated Press message from Auckland, the Niagara sank in 20 minutes. 'Planes assisted in the search for the ship's lifeboats, in which were 135 passengers and 200 crew. Minesweepers were on the scene early this morning. These are the first German mines laid in the South Pacific since war began.

LAST OF THE B.E.F. RETURN

When the last of the British Expeditionary Force evacuated from France reached a west of England port yesterday they told how some motor cycles were given away to French people. French people were allowed to carry away Army food and stores. The French Army so seriously lacked equipment in the closing days that they used horses to take guns into action.

Most of the B.E.F. travelled by lorries to a French port, from which they embarked for England. It was these vehicles which had to be abandoned and destroyed.

"It was heartbreaking to have to smash up the engines and dashboards with pick-axes," said one driver.

Many of the troops were allowed to bring away as much tobacco as they could lay their hands on before the canteens' stores were set on fire.

One group of drivers said that many French refugees, whose cars had run out of petrol, begged for cupfuls from British lorries.

THE RECRUITING CAMPAIGN

ALL-PARTY MEETING IN TRALEE

MR. DE VALERA TO SPEAK

MR. DE VALERA has signified his willingness to attend a public all-party meeting in Tralee on Sunday, to urge support for the Government's national defence policy in the present emergency. Mr. Cosgrave, who was also invited, has wired regretting his inability to attend. No reply has yet been received from Mr. W. Norton.

LIMERICK MEETING

A public meeting will be held at the O'Connell Monument, Limerick, on Sunday, at 12.30 o'clock, for the purpose of appealing for recruits for the Army Volunteer Force and Local Security Force. All the deputies and Senators in the constituency have intimated that they will attend and speak.

A convention of the County Executive of Fine Gael will be held in Cruise's Hotel, Limerick, on Saturday, for the purpose of considering the steps to be taken to co-operate in the present emergency. An address will be delivered by Mr. Dan Morrissy, T.D.

Mr. Liam Fraher, Bruff, a member of the County Executive of Fine Gael, has joined the army in the non-commissioned ranks.

MOUNT STREET CLUB'S PART

At the weekly meeting of the Board of Governors of the Mount Street Club it was reported that the response to the appeal for recruits for the defence forces has been extremely satisfactory. On the farm alone more than two-thirds of the members resident there had offered their services, and also a large number from the club itself. The vacancies on the farm had been filled from the waiting list.

FRENCH ARMY GOES ON FIGHTING

EFFORT TO BREAK GERMAN PINCERS

BORDEAUX, Wednesday.

"Our isolated armies continue to fight with unequalled energy," it was declared to-night in a commentary on the French communiqué, issued by the Havas Agency.

"Under mass attacks by armoured divisions and the German Air Force, the extended front of our armies has for several days past been cut into several sections.

"Our forces in the West, under the command of General de la Laurencie and General Langlois, are withdrawing partly into Brittany and partly south of the Lower Loire, fighting rearguard actions.

"The armies which were fighting round Paris, under the orders of General Hering, General Frere and General Touchon, gave the enemy battle again on the middle course of the Loire, and then, obeying orders, continued their movement southwards to establish themselves in more favourable positions.

"Our armies in Champagne, outflanked on either side by German armoured divisions, tried to break through in the direction of Dijon.

FORMED INTO SQUARES

"Our armies in Lorraine, under the command of General Conde and General Bourret, have formed their battalions into squares, and, standing up to the enemy, who continues to attack ceaselessly from the East, North and West, are proceeding step by step from the West of the Vosges towards the South, in an effort to break through the enemy grip.

"The army of Alsace, under the orders of General Laure, is also carving a way through enemy forces, trying to bar its path.

"Thus, although our armies are cut off from each other, each retains its cohesion, and is manœuvring its retreat in the direction laid down for it.

"In fighting thus day after day without respite, against forces superior both in numbers and material, they have sustained losses through enemy fire and through fatigue, but their morale remains splendid. They are putting up a desperate resistance to the enemy's advance."—(Press Association War Special.)

ANOTHER BRITISH BUDGET SOON

SOLICITOR-GENERAL'S STATEMENT

It is inevitable that in a very few months another British Finance Bill will be introduced. This statement was made by Sir William Jowitt (Solicitor-General) during the report stage of the Finance Bill in the House of Commons yesterday. Sir William was replying to opponents of a new clause of the Finance Bill moved by the Chancellor of the Exchequer (Sir Kingsley Wood). The clause provided that in estimating liability to excess profits tax in the case of mines or oil wells the referees should have power to allow a higher percentage upon the capital of such concerns. The clause limited the addition to a further four per cent., but Sir Kingsley Wood said that it was unlikely that in practice the increase would exceed two or three per cent.

OBITUARY

MR. PATRICK CAHILL

The death occurred yesterday, at his residence, Hayesbank Park, Londonderry, of Mr. Patrick Cahill, a former District Inspector of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, aged 65. He joined the Royal Irish Constabulary and served in many parts of Ireland. While serving in Cork City he was promoted Head Constable, and was transferred to Belfast in 1920. Twelve months afterwards he was promoted District Inspector, and was sent to Londonderry, where he remained for eight years. He was transferred then to Aughnacloy, County Tyrone, where he remained until 1931, when he retired, and returned to reside in Londonderry. He was the holder of the King's Police Medal.

BRIGADIER W. K. McCLINTOCK

The death has occurred at Epsom, Surrey, of Brigadier William Kerr McClintock, C.B., Royal Berkshire Regiment, aged 81. He was the eldest son of Captain T. M. McClintock, J.P., Royal Irish Fusiliers, of Hampstead Hall, Londonderry. He was educated at Haileybury College and the Royal Military College, Sandhurst. He joined the Royal Berkshire Regiment in 1879, and served in the Egyptian Campaign of 1882, during the siege of Alexandria, receiving the bronze star and medal. He also served in McNeil's Zareba, when the regiment was granted the title Royal for its fine defence. In 1885-'86 he went to Australia, where he was Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General at Brisbane. He took part in the South African war, receiving the Queen's Medal with two clasps, and he commanded the Royal Berkshire Regiment (1904-'08). In the European War (1914-1916) he commanded the Infantry Brigade of the Ulster Division, and was twice mentioned in despatches. He received the Order of Commander of the Bath for distinguishd and meritorious service, the 1914-'15 Star, the War Medal, the Victory Medal, and also a good service pension.

AIR RAIDS ON BRITAIN

100 'Planes take Part

GERMAN BASES SUFFER SEVERELY

SPREADING fanwise over a 200 miles section of the East coast of England on Tuesday night, a German bomber Armada of about one hundred 'planes carried out the first big raid of the war on Britain.

The victims were fourteen killed and thirty injured in an East Anglian town and in towns further North. Bombs fell in several counties.

Seven German 'planes were brought down, and many German airmen were taken prisoner in Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex and Kent, all of which counties, together with Lincolnshire, Northamptonshire, Yorkshire, Cambridgeshire and the Thames Estuary, had alarms, some lasting four hours.

Some damage was done to military objectives.

The Press Association states that a Fighter Command pilot was shortly before one a.m. patrolling over the Thames estuary when he saw a twin-engined enemy bomber caught by a searchlight. He attacked and the bomber crashed in flames in Essex. A few minutes later he saw another German bomber over the Thames estuary and he brought it down also. One Blenheim shot down a Heinkel 111 over Norfolk and further south, another Blenheim hit a Heinkel 111 and put his port engine out of action.

GERMANS CAPTURED

R.A.F. fighters attacked a Heinkel over Kent. Trying to escape, the Heinkel jettisoned some thirty small bombs before it was shot down. The members of its crew were captured. People in Cambridgeshire watched three German airmen descend by parachute after their Heinkel had been destroyed.

Approximately eighteen persons, comprising civilians and police, were killed when British bombers raided North and West Germany on Tuesday night.

This was announced in a German High Command communiqué from Berlin yesterday. The communiqué states:—

"On the night of June 18th British 'planes flew over North and West Germany in order to scatter their bombs, as hitherto, on non-military objectives. Approximately eighteen deaths among the police and the civil population have been reported, including a number of persons who had not taken cover in the air-raid shelters. Yesterday's total enemy losses in the air amounted to six 'planes. Five German 'planes are missing."

GERMAN BASES BOMBED

A Press Association War Special message says that more than 250 bombs were dropped in ten minutes, causing many explosions and fires among oil tanks when the R.A.F. attacked military objectives in Bremen during widespread raids on North-West Germany and the Rhineland. Oil supply centres, railway marshalling yards, power stations and rail communications in many parts were attacked. Hamburg was subjected to a series of raids, when a large oil depôt was burned. At Castrop high explosive bombs fell on a petroleum refinery.

Storage tanks at Misburg were also systematically bombed. Oil tanks at Sterkrade were also bombed, despite intense anti-aircraft fire. Other sections of the night raiders, with the railway communications in the Rhineland and the Ruhr as their objectives, attacked the marshalling yards, railway junctions and supply trains, and a munition works at Cologne.

TRANSPORT WRECKED

Another P.A. War Special message states:—

Yesterday R.A.F. bombers carried out a number of reconnaissances over Northern France, Belgium and Holland. Others attacked columns of motor transport approaching Cherbourg. These were thrown into disorder. Many vehicles were destroyed. Two aircraft failed to return.

BRITISH SOLDIERS DISARMED

A BELFAST INCIDENT

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Wednesday.

Two British soldiers were held up in the White Rock district of Belfast to-day by men armed with revolvers. The men took the rifles from the soldiers and then escaped in a motor car. A search was begun by the military in the district shortly afterwards, and cars were stopped and searched, but no arrests were made.

A fight occurred to-night between two gangs in the neighbourhood of Peter's Hill. Hand to hand fighting took place, and then the combatants separated and threw stones at one another. A few people received minor injuries. The crowds dispersed when the police arrived.

OTTAWA, Wednesday.

Canada has undertaken to receive aliens at present interned in Britain, and also prisoners of war, Mr. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, announced to-day. He did not, however, mention how many she would receive. Mr. Mackenzie King added that he had learned, through conferences with British officials, that Britain wanted first to evacuate internees, because they might cause disturbances in the event of an invasion; then prisoners of war, and, lastly, children.

He added that the Candian Government was attempting to meet Britain's wishes in the order of preference, and arrangements were being made for the shipment of prisoners.

SPAIN EXPECTS "SHARE OF THE SPOILS"

By Associated Press.

MADRID, Wednesday.

Spain's active rôle in the peace negotiations between France and the Axis Powers has failed to blind Spanish Nationalists to their own "vital interests." Responsible quarters emphasised to-day that Spain would expect to have a voice in any territorial arrangements, a voice which Hitler and Mussolini have already said she would have. "The road to the Empire which the Falangist Party marked out long ago leads first due south," it was stated.

"ATTACK ON BRITAIN TO BE REDOUBLED"

BITTER COMMENTS IN AXIS PRESS

ZURICH, Wednesday.

All Press reports reaching here from Rome and Berlin indicate that the axis partners are unlikely to grant France an armistice except on conditions amounting to complete capitulation.

In both the German and the Italian Press Mr. Churchill's declaration that Britain will fight on to victory is greeted with biting sarcasm. "Yes, till the German victory," is the comment of the Voelkischer Beobachter.

According to Signor Gayda, "Mussolini's mouthpiece," writing in the Giornale d'Italia, Germany and Italy will now attack Britain with redoubled energy. Germany will attack in the north, where, he claims, Britain is almost surrounded, while Italy will attack British positions generally in the Mediterranean, Africa and the Near East.

In these areas, he declares, Italy is certain of success, whether the United States enters the war or not.

BERLIN VIEW

As operations are still continuing, the capitulation of France is the only possible condition for an armistice, it is considered in Berlin, writes the Berlin correspondent of the Basler Nachrichten.

It is stated that France must be prevented from giving assistance to Britain.

The speech of M. Baudouin, the French Foreign Minister, is severely criticised as an attempt to weaken Marshal Pétain's move for an armistice and to restore French resistance.

Mr. Churchill's determination to carry on is ridiculed in Berlin. "He should take note of the many lessons given him by Germany," it is added.—(P.A. War Special.)

ALGERIAN MAYORS' PLEDGE

MADRID, Wednesday.

The Mayors of Algerian towns have sent telegrams to President Lebrun and Marshal Pétain expressing "their immovable devotion to France, and their unshakable faith in her future," says the French radio.

In a similar message to M. Pomaret, Minister of the Interior, the Mayors declare that "they and their populations are unanimously ready to continue serving France with their whole strength, their whole energy, and all their resources."—(Press Association War Special.)

QUEEN WILHELMINA'S MESSAGE

Queen Wilhelmina has sent a message to the French President assuring him of her unshakable faith in the complete resurrection of France.

M. Lebrun replied: "In the dark hour through which we are now passing France retains the certainty that the heroic efforts of the Allied Armies will not have been in vain, and that in them lies the assurance of a future of freedom for Europe."

QUIT SHANGHAI!

JAPANESE DEMAND TO EUROPEAN POWERS

From Reuter's Correspondent.

SHANGHAI, Wednesday.

A demand for the withdrawal of third power belligerent corps from Shanghai was made officially to-day by the Mayor of the Japanese-sponsored City Government of Greater Shanghai. He addressed letters to the British, French and Italian Consulates-General urging them to take immediate steps to facilitate the withdrawal of the troops.

Japanese support for the Mayor's demand was given by a Japanese Embassy spokesman to-night, when he said: "There is not room for criticism of the proposals from the standpoint of international law." He contended that the maintenance of armed forces by belligerents on neutral territory was contrary to international law.

The Japanese Army and Navy authorities in Central China have issued a statement requesting foreigners to leave Chungking, China's wartime capital. The authorities add that they cannot assume any responsibility for damage resulting from failure to comply with the evacuation request.

THE SETTLEMENT AT TIENTSIN

BARRIERS TO BE OPENED

"Times" Telegram.

TOKYO, Wednesday.

With the final formal settlement of the Tientsin question a sore spot which has virtually infected Anglo-Japanese relations for over a year has disappeared. The barriers will be opened immediately, although, being technically a military question, that is not included in the agreement which Sir Robert Craigie and Mr. Arita signed to-day.

Any supposition that the agreement embodies further concessions extracted from Great Britain by the critical situation in Europe would be incorrect. The terms signed to-day were in substance reached some weeks ago. The Chungking Government has given its consent to the agreement, and this will be announced from Chungking.—(Copyright, per P.A.)

LORD MAYORALTY OF DUBLIN

Mr. P. Belton, T.D., was put forward as the Fine Gael candidate for the Lord Mayoralty at a meeting of the North-East Dublin Executive Committee of Fine Gael held in Moran's Hotel last night. A joint meeting of the four Executives of Fine Gael in the Corporation area will be held on Tuesday next at 3 Merrion square to discuss the proposal.

LIVE-STOCK EXPORTS

WAR RISKS INSURANCE

NEW BILL INTRODUCED IN THE DAIL

DETAILS of an insurance scheme for live-stock were given by Dr. J. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, when moving the second reading of the Exported Live Stock (Insurance) Bill, 1940, in the Dail yesterday.

The scheme for mutual insurance against war risks had, he said, been worked out by the live stock exporters, who had felt the need of such cover. It was not a very suitable time for the operation of such a scheme, but they felt it desirable to go on with the bill, which need not be brought into operation until an appointed day. At present the rates of insurance on live stock were very high, and, having regard to the fact that in cattle alone 600,000 were exported each year, the amount involved could be appreciated.

BOARD OF EIGHT

To administer the scheme a Board of eight would be appointed by the National Executive of the cattle trade for five years, at least one of them a pig exporter and four cattle and sheep exporters. The fund would be created by levies of what they felt would be a fair amount.

The levy would be fixed by the Minister after consultation with the Board, and would be payable by stamps supplied to the shipping companies. The insurance would continue for 72 hours after landing.

THE CASE OF CANVASSERS

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Monaghan) suggested that the Minister should ensure that employment was found within the scheme for men who would lose their business through it, or, alternatively, they should be compensated.

Dr. RYAN promised to look into the case of canvassers for insurance mentioned by Deputy Dillon, but he presumed that the commission they claimed was only part of their income. This was a scheme prepared by the Live Stock Exporters, and the Department had not interfered with it very much, although they had made a number of suggestions, some of which had been adopted.

The second reading was passed, and the Committee stage fixed for Wednesday next.

CONTROVERSIAL MEASURES

When the order of business was mentioned, Mr. W. T. COSGRAVE (F.G., Cork City) said that the Minister was aware that one item—St. Laurence O'Toole Hospital Bill—was controversial.

Mr. RUTTLEDGE (Minister for Local Government) said he had just been informed that some matter had been raised with regard to that being a controversial bill, and that referred also to the Local Government Bill. He could not see how the latter could be regarded as controversial. In regard to the other bill, the main contentious amendment had practically been disposed of, as far as he was aware.

Mr. W. NORTON (Lab., Kildare) said he understood it was not the intention to hold local elections this year.

Mr. RUTTLEDGE said he was bringing in a bill giving power to hold local elections at a later date. The power he was taking was to hold them any time before 30th September, 1941.

It was decided to take the two bills mentioned that day.

The Enforcement of Court Orders Bill, 1940, was passed through the report and final stages.

PIGS AND BACON BILL

COMPENSATION FOR BACON CURERS

Dr. J. RYAN, Minister for Agriculture, moving the second reading of the Pigs and Bacon Bill, 1940, said that the main provision of the bill was to fix the award of compensation to the bacon-curers who retired from business as a result of previous legislation. The bill would make it clear that in a case where the arbitrators disagreed the Minister would appoint one member of the Arbitration Board, not the chairman of the Pigs and Bacon Commission, to decide the award.

Dr. Ryan said that during the recent trade talks in London his Department discussed with the British Government the question of a larger export quota. They had failed to reach agreement on the question, as there were certain points to be dealt with by the British Government.

At the present time there was a lot of bacon on the hands of the curers, and the curers' export quota was not sufficient.

Mr. J. M. DILLON said that they should get into the production of pigs on a larger scale. He would now say, as a former opponent of the maize-meal mixture scheme, that they should embark on the scheme. It was now a vital matter for the industry, as they might not be able to get maize meal this year.

LIVE PIG EXPORTS

The MINISTER, replying, said that, in connection with the issue of licences, the British had told them that if the export of live pigs increased there would have to be control. The object of issuing the licences was to keep the number roughly, at the same level. Four or five hundred pigs per month more might not matter, but they had to keep the number steady.

Speaking of the position in relation to feeding-stuffs, the Minister said that the maize millers had suggested a scheme much the same as that suggested by Mr. Dillon, and had asked to be allowed to work it themselves. The scheme was a workable one and would not be lost sight of. On account of the position of seed oats last spring it was possible that the price would be poor at the beginning of this harvest. A very small amount of seed oats was purchased even though there was an increased acreage sown. They were anxious about the oats on hands, and would be ready to consider a pooling system.

The second stage was passed and the Committee stage fixed for Wednesday next.

SUPPLY SERVICES

The Money Resolution to make good out of the Central Fund the sum of £19,883,869 for supply services for the year ending 31st March, 1941, was passed.

OTHER BILLS

The Appropriation Bill, 1940, passed through all stages.

Leave was given the Minister for Local Government (Mr. Ruttledge) to introduce the Local Elections (Amendment) Bill, 1940, which extends for a period of one year the period within which local elections are to be held.

On the motion of Mr. RUTTLEDGE, Minister for Local Government, the second reading was passed of the Emergency Powers (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill, 1940, which extends the principal Act for one year.

Referring to the Local Government Bill and St. Laurence O'Toole Hospital Bill, which had been mentioned earlier in the day, the MINISTER for LOCAL GOVERNMENT (Mr. Ruttledge) said his only anxiety was that if the St. Laurence O'Toole Bill were passed now certain preliminary work could be done.

With regard to the Local Government Bill, it was complementary to the County Management Act and the Public Assistance Act of last year. It might be possible to enact the County Managers measure without holding the local elections. As it had been suggested that controversial questions might be raised on these bills, it might be better to leave them over until September next, and he was quite agreeable to that.

The Dail adjourned until Wednesday next.

Inquest on Farmer.—The inquest on James Copithorne (41), farmer, Highfield, Skibbereen, whose body was recovered from the Ilen River at Oldcourt after three days' search, was opened and adjourned to July 2nd at Skibbereen yesterday. The Coroner decided on adourning the inquiry after hearing the evidence of Dr. P. J. Burke, Skibbereen.

* * *

Tralee Motoring Accident.—A motor car with seven passengers came into collision with a telegraph pole near the Spa, Tralee, when avoiding a cyclist. Six were removed to St. Catherine's County Hospital, where three—Patrick and Maurice Breen, Glencar, and William Casey, Knockanish, Tralee—were detained, suffering from superficial bruises and scratches. The impact brought down the telegraph wires and severely damaged the car.

* * *

Woman Thief Sentenced.—Three months' sentence was imposed at Cork District Court yesterday on Ellen O'Driscoll, of no fixed address, on charges of the larceny of an umbrella and a clock at the South Presbytery, George's quay, and larceny at other places of a woman's coat, a sugar bowl and a jug. Asking for a chance, the accused woman said that she had been in the County Home for six years, and was only allowed out last Monday. Evidence was given of a number of previous convictions.

* * *

Cool Thieves.—Thieves who broke into the third class refreshment room on Dundalk Great Northern Railway station at Dundalk on Wednesday morning treated themselves to a meal of roast beef, bread and biscuits, as well as bottled stout, before leaving. In addition, £2 in cash was taken, as were chocolates, cigarettes and small quantities of whiskey and gin. Some of the drink was carried off the premises, but the remainder was consumed in the refreshment room. Entry was effected by breaking a pane of glass and opening a window catch.

* * *

Poor Law Assistance in April.—The total number of persons (men, women and children) in receipt of public assistance under the Poor Law on the last Saturday of April, 1940, was 111,116, which is 58 less than the previous month and 8,083 more than on the corresponding day last year. The number of persons in receipt of home assistance was 91,840, or 100 less than the previous month, and 8,015 more than on the corresponding day last year. The average cost of home assistance was £12,530 per week, or £459 less than in the previous month, and £786 more per week than in April, 1939.

* * *

Workmen's Compensation Act.—Whether a man, who was knocked down by a 'bus while returning from the Labour Exchange which he visited during his dinner hour in connection with his employment insurance card, could be said to have been injured in the course of his employment, was argued at Cork County Court yesterday, when Thomas Cullinane, Francistown, Castlelyons, sued the Cork County Council under the Workmens Compensation Acts. Holding that the applicant was engaged in complying with his employers' regulations at the time of the accident, Judge O'Connor awarded 30s. per week up to April, 1940.

* * *

Business Men's Association.—At a specially convened meeting of the Talbot Street Business Men's Association, an address was given by Captain P. J. McDonagh, Warden, No. 3 Area, on air raid protection. He explained in detail the working of A.R.P., and emphasised how necessary it was that the general public should co-operate in every way to carry out the regulations. He asked for volunteers to act as wardens, and the immediate response to his appeal must be very encouraging. Mr. M. J. Darcy, Director of Organisation for A.R.P., also addressed the meeting. Mr. F. A. Moran, Vice-Chairman, Talbot Street Business Men's Association, presided.

Prison for Assaulting Sergeant.—At Newry Petty Sessions yesterday, before Major McCallum, R.M., Robert Allenby Gardiner, Clonallon, Warrenpoint, appeared in custody on remand, charged with assaulting Sergeant Donoghue, Warrenpoint, on May 29. Evidence showed that during a raid on defendant's home (under the Civil Authorities Special Powers Act and Defence of the Realm Regulations) he struck Sergeant Donoghue a violent blow on the mouth. Defendant said that he only hit out to relieve the pain he felt when his arm was being twisted, and he did not hit out at anyone in particular. He was sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment and ordered to enter into £10 bail, with sureties, or, in default, a further two months.

Woman Saved from Drowning.—How a woman was saved from drowning near the Pigeonhouse, Dublin, on June 11th, was described by her rescuer, Michael Costello, at an inquest yesterday on another man—John Joseph Stokes (58), of 16 Chelmsford avenue, Ranelagh, who died in attempting to save her. Michael Costello said that when he heard two people were in difficulties he searched for them with a boat. He found the woman and took her ashore, where he applied artificial respiration until the ambulance arrived. He was unable to find the man. The body of Stokes was found on Tuesday last on Sandymount Strand. The County Dublin Coroner (Dr. J. P. Brennan) returned a verdict of "Death by drowning." The Coroner and Station Sergeant A. Stanley congratulated Michael Costello on his action, which probably was the means of averting a double tragedy.

* * *

Sugar Confectionery Trade.—At a meeting yesterday in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, between representatives of the Sugar Confectionery Manufacturers' Association, the Sugar Manufacturers' Association, the Jam Manufacturers' Association, the Fruit Preserving Association, the Irish Women Workers' Union, the Workers' Union of Ireland, the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union and the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union, it was decided, it is understood, to implement the recent decision of the Sugar Confectionery Trade Board regarding increases in the wages of workers in the trade. The increases are understood to amount to 1d. per hour for adult male workers over 22 years, ½d. per hour for male workers over 18 and under 22 years and for adult female workers other than learners, and ½d. per hour for boys under 18 years and for women learners.

Lifting the Tram Tracks.—Belfast Corporation Transport Committee yesterday decided to lift all tram tracks not in use in the city, so that the steel can be made immediately available for armaments. The work will be carried out as a relief scheme with the sanction of the Ministry of Labour.

Cork Chamber's Appeal.—Cork Incorporated Chamber of Commerce and Shipping is appealing to employers to facilitate their employés in answering the Government's call for recruits for the defence forces and to arrange reinstatement in their employment when temporary service with the forces ends.

* * *

Seaman's Body Found.—An inquest was held at Malin Head last night on an unidentified seaman, whose body was found floating in the water near the coast. It is believed that his boat was sunk. There was no evidence to show the identity of the man other than a handkerchief bearing the name "H. Dickens," and a purse bearing the word "Portsmouth." A verdict of death from drowning was returned.

White Gloves.—Judge Gleeson, K.C., was presented with white gloves at Longford for the third time in succession. He congratulated the people on the crimeless state of the county. At Limerick Circuit Court, Judge McElligott was presented with white gloves. The judge said that the presentation of white gloves went back hundreds of years, and it would be a shocking thing that a ceremonial of that kind, which had no political significance whatever, should be dropped. It was merely an indication of the peacefulness of the district where the judge was sitting.

EGYPTIAN FRONTIER TROOPS WITHDRAWN

TO AVOID INCIDENTS, PREMIER SAYS

CAIRO, Wednesday.

In a statement in the Egyptian Chamber to-night, Aly Maher Pasha, the Premier, said that some Egyptian forces had been withdrawn from the western frontier to avoid an incident occurring before Parliament had had time to act in the best interests of the country.

The Premier denied the suggestion that Egyptian forces had not defended themselves when attacked, but said that orders had been given that these forces should not take part in any attack.

He emphasised that Egypt was fulfilling all obligations, and was following a policy of complete support for her ally, Britain, with loyalty and goodwill.—(Associated Press.)

EGYPTIAN PREMIER'S ASSURANCE

"WILL FULFIL ALL OBLIGATIONS"

CAIRO, Wednesday.

Addressing the Chamber of Deputies to-night, Ali Maher Pasha, the Egyptian Prime Minister, declared that the country might rest assured that the Government would never adopt a policy other than the maintenance of Egypt's independence and rights and, at the same time, "the fulfilment of our obligations."

"The task is grave," he said.

"I appeal for all help for the Government to carry out its duty towards the fatherland at this critical hour."—(Press Association War Special.)

LOCAL SECURITY CORPS

Meetings for the organisation of branches of the Local Security Corps were held last night at Stepaside and Glencullen, County Dublin, and were addressed by members of the Dáil. Mr. Larry Rowe, Kilternan, presided at Stepaside, and made a strong appeal for recruits for the corps.

Mr. Sean Brady, T.D., explained the need for the Local Security Corps.

Mr. H. M. Dockrell said that those who could not join the Army ought to join the corps, and there was ample opportunity for them to work in co-operation with the Civic Guards in patrolling the district. It was no ordinary need which had brought the members of all political parties on the same platform.

Mr. P. Belton also spoke of the need for rousing public opinion.

Mr. Derrig, Minister for Lands, was received by the President yesterday morning and received from him his seal of office as Minister for Education.

BREACH OF PROMISE

£150 DAMAGES

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

Damages fixed at £150 and costs were awarded to Miss Sarah McErlane, Sidmonton square, Bray, against James Cooper, Breffni terrace, Sandycove, fireman, employed by the Dun Laoghaire Borough Council, for breach of promise to marry.

The plaintiff said that she was acting during the summer as manageress of Miss Griffin's summer hotel at Kilkee, County Clare. She met Cooper at a dance at Kilmacanogue, County Wicklow, in April, 1939, and she agreed to marry him. He gave her a ring. She told him that she could not let Miss Griffin down, and that she would go to Kilkee for the summer and would marry him in October. They corresponded regularly during the summer, and arranged to be married on October 23rd. On that date she was informed by her mother that Cooper had been married on that very morning.

Cross-examined by Mr. Deale (instructed by Messrs. Cullen and O'Beirne) for Cooper, the plaintiff said that she did not know anything about the other girl.

Mr. Deale said that Cooper had instructed him to say that he was sorry for any heartaches he had caused the plaintiff, and had unsuccessfully endeavoured to avoid the case being brought to Court.

Mr. T. C. Tobias (instructed by Mr. W. J. Shannon and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff.

PLEASANT GARDEN PARTY

BRIGHT DRESSES A FEATURE

The annual members' garden party of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland in the grounds at Phœnix Park yesterday was a most enjoyable function, and was very well attended

The gardens looked their best, and the guests, many of whom were accompanied by their children, spent a pleasant afternoon in the grounds, where the band of the British Legion provided a programme of music.

Lady HolmPatrick came in a dress of dull mulberry colour, with a three-quarter length jacket of a darker shade, and a small navy blue straw hat; she was seen talking to Lady Maffey, whose fuchsia bolero dress was accompanied by a straw hat to match.

Lady Moore wore a tailored dress of natural coloured linen tweed and a small hat with a nigger brown band, while Mrs. Allan Gordon chose a pleated powder blue dress with appliqued sleeves, and a small black hat.

Mrs. Cambreth Cane came in a graceful gown of black organza, with a white thread pattern, and a spray of mauve sweet pea on the corsage. Her grey felt hat was trimmed with veiling.

Mrs. E. M. Stephens wore a floral dress and a large black flower-trimmed hat, while Mrs. Donal O'Sullivan had a maize coloured tailored linen dress and a picture hat, embroidered on crown and brim.

Madam O'Callaghan was wearing a navy blue coat over a figured dress, and Mrs. P. Lefroy, who was accompanied by her son, Geoffrey, had a gaily striped chiffon dress and a tip-tilted sailor hat of navy blue felt.

Mrs. Chisolm Cameron looked well in a natural coloured tussore ensemble, with fringe trimming and a small green toque.

Mrs. R. W. Sinnott had a smart two-piece ensemble of navy blue and white figured silk, with white revers and a becoming navy blue hat, while Miss Cathleen Synge was wearing pale pink.

Mrs. P Le Fanu chose bright blue, with a swathed hat to match, and Mrs. Wilmot Lloyd wore a ninon dress in sweet-pea colourings, with a veiled pill-box to tone.

Miss Maeve Marnan wore a panama hat, with a tailored navy blue dress, and Miss Anne Townshend looked well in a floral dress trimmed with velvet ribbon bows.

MEADOW FESCUE WINS

Miss Paget's Double at Mallow: Free State takes 'Chase

MISS DOROTHY PAGET and her trainer, C. Rogers, shared in the distinction of a double event at Mallow yesterday, when Passeport II. and Saffron Hill won the Fermoy Hurdle and the Bandon Steeplechase respectively.

In each instance the successful jockey was D. L. Moore, whose good judgment and forceful riding were most helpful factors in this dual triumph.

The racing throughout was of a very enjoyable kind and was given the added enlivenment of a head-heat.

This was in the Bantry Plate, which brought out a field of just one short of a score, and in a great finish Prophet's Thumb and Twelve ran home locked together, with Mr. J. P. Hogan and Mr. Henry Harty, on Prophet's Thumb and Twelve respectively, giving a most persevering display.

Passeport II., a French-bred gelding, proved too good for the five opposing him in the Fermoy Hurdle after Prescribed had made all the running to the second-last flight.

Lord Glentoran's colours are not often carried at this meeting, but this very liberal patron of racing was deservedly given his turn of good luck when the speedy Rose Garland almost ran away with the Shandon Plate, Embrasure failing to make any impression on him.

The very good impression which Free State made in winning at the "Junction" this promising four-year-old confirmed most convincingly in beating Sir Sen in a testing finish to the Mallow Steeplechase.

St. Lua and Meadow Fescue had a spirited tussle in the Banteer Plate, while for a long way Fairwargor was shaping like winning, but a very strong riding effort by T. Burns got Meadow Fescue home by a neck.

Saffron Hill made light of a 9lb. penalty in winning the Bandon Steeplechase, coming clean away from Deal to win by ten lengths.

LEAGUE VICTORY FOR LEINSTER

In defeating Dublin University by eight wickets in the Senior League match at Rathmines yesterday Leinster keep alive their interest in the championship. Continuing their overnight innings at 141 for 5, Trinity added only 24, leaving their opponents the difficult task of getting 166 runs for victory in just two hours.

Connell and Gill gave Leinster a good start, but with the score at 40 Connell was forced to retire through illness. Shortly afterwards Gill was sent back, but then Burke, Lambert and Mannion batted with grand freedom, and, despite frequent bowling changes, Lambert and Mannion, both with 42 to their credit and undefeated, brought the total past Trinity's score with five minutes to spare. HERMES DEFEAT A.A.U.E. TEAM

FAST QUARTER-MILE BY D. T. YOUNG

HERMES .... 7 A.A.U.E. 5

The absence of B. Healion, S. de Lacy and other A.A.U.E. competitors took away considerable interest from their contest with Hermes, which the latter won by 7 contests to 5 in the College Park last night.

In most of the events the standard fell below expectations, but there were a few exceptions, notably the 220 yards, which was won by M. K. Maconchy in 23 secs., and the 440 yards, in which D. T. Young returned 51 2-5 secs.

The mile created a big surprise, as J. W. T. Tuckey beat D. H. McNeill by 20 yards in 4 mins. 37 4-5 secs.

There was a thrilling finish to the 100 yards event, won by D. R. Doyle, an A.A.U.E. reserve, less than two feet covering the four runners as they breasted the tape. Details:—

100 Yards—D. R Doyle (A.A.U.E.), 1; L. H. Braddell (Hermes), 2. Also ran—M. B. Taylor (A.A.U.E.), M. K. Maconchy (Hermes). Won by inches. Time—10 2-5 secs.

220 Yards—M. K. Maconchy (Hermes), 1; N. B. Taylor (A.A.U.E.), 2. Also ran—G. Sayers (Hermes) and R. J. Craig (A.A.U.E.). Won by 1 yard. Time—23 secs.

440 Yards—D. T. Young (Hermes), 1; G. A. Ruskell (A.A.U.E.), 2. Also ran—R. N. Coote (Hermes). Won by 4 yards. Time—51 2-5 secs.

880 Yards—D. T. Young (Hermes), 1; D. H. McNeill (Hermes), 2. Also ran—G. A. Ruskell and T. McManus (A.A.U.E.). Won by 10 yards. Time—2 mins. 5 1-5 secs.

One Mile—J. W. T. Tuckey (Hermes), 1; D. H. McNeill (Hermes), 2. Also competed—D. Morgan and B. Foreman (A.A.U.E.). Won by 20 yards. Time—4 mins. 37 4-5 secs.

Three Miles—P. Coburn (A.A.U.E.), 1; N. D. Oswald (Hermes), 2. Also competed—J. Worrall (A.A.U.E.). Won by 3 yards. Time—16 mins. 19 3-5 secs.

Relay (440 x 4)—A.A.U.E. walk over.

High Jump—R. O'Rafferty (A.A.U.E.), 6 ft., 1; J. McGouran (A.A.U.E.) and L. H. Braddell (Hermes) tied at 5 ft. 7 ins. Also competed—D. H. McNeill (Hermes).

Long Jump—L. Carroll (A.A.U.E.), 20 ft. 11½ ins., 1; J. Conway (A.A.U.E.), 20 ft. 9½ ins., 2. Also competed—D. R. Doyle and T. P. Harvey (Hermes).

16lb. Shot—L. N. Horan (Hermes), 45 ft. 7 ins., 1; J. Keogh (A.A.U.E.), 34 ft. 11 ins., 2. Also competed—L. H. Braddell (A.A.U.E.) and R. N. Coote (Hermes).

Discus—L. N. Horan (Hermes), 123 ft. 10 ins., 1; R. N. Coote (A.A.U.E.), 103 ft., 2. Also competed—L. H. Braddell (Hermes) and J. Aiken (A.A.U.E.).

Javelin—S. J. Poots (Hermes), 143 ft. 8 ins., 1; L. N. Horan (Hermes), 141 ft. 11 ins., 2.

ENGLISH RACING STOPPED

NO MEETINGS UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE

The Stewards of the Jockey Club, after consultation with His Majesty's Government, announced yesterday that no further racing would take place under their rules until further notice.

Flat race fixtures had been arranged up to the end of August. The meetings which were to have taken place this week included one at Newmarket under the auspices of the Ascot authority. The amount of added money at this meeting was to have been £8,250. The programme included such important races as the Gold Cup, the Royal Hunt Cup, and Ascot Stakes.

On the outbreak of the war in September last the British Government announced that sports gatherings and all gatherings for purposes of entertainment, whether outdoor or indoor, which involve large numbers congregating together, were prohibited until further notice. Racing in Great Britain, therefore, automatically ceased.

It was resumed on October 18th at Newmarket, and the sport has since been continued on a restricted scale. Some of the meetings included in the revised fixture lists issued from time to time were cancelled when local or other conditions demanded it.

Several important races have been decided this year, including the Grand National, the Lincolnshire Handicap, and substitutes for the classic races—the 2,000 Guineas, 1,000 Guineas, Derby and Oaks.

The cessation of racing means a heavy loss to owners, trainers, jockeys, and others engaged in the sport. Some stables will be carried on under restricted conditions. Their owners, like Mr. H. L. Cottrill, who trains at Lambourn in Berkshire, will retain only their best horses. Some of the smaller training establishments will close down completely.

There is still a market overseas for British bloodstock, and some of the horses it is decided not to keep in training will find buyers there. The rest will have to be destroyed. The greatest centre to suffer from the cessation of racing will be Newmarket, as this town of 10,000 inhabitants is wholly dependent upon the sport.

LAWN TENNIS

EAST OF IRELAND SEMI-FINALISTS

INTERESTING MATCHES AT LANSDOWNE

The East of Ireland championships were well advanced yesterday, when the singles were brought to the semi-finals. R. F. Egan, the holder, was joined in that round of the men's singles by Paul Read, E. H. Porter and A. E. Fannin.

In the quarter-final, G. P. Jackson gave Read, the hard court champion, a stiff run. Jackson, by means of well-timed advances to the net, recovered from 3-5 down in the first set to level at 5-all, and led 4-0-love on service in the eleventh game. He let this game slip, and Read took the next for the set at 7-5. In the second set Read succeeded in pegging his opponent down to the base line, and took it for the match.

A. E. Fannin and C. A. Kemp fought a long and well-played match with varying fortune, but in the end Fannin's greater steadiness brought him through.

E. H. Porter, playing finely, had an easy straight set win at the expense of "A. String."

Miss O. Poole had reached the semi-final of the women's singles on the previous evening, and last evening's three-quarter finals were won without much trouble by Miss E. F. Lombard, Mrs. Dunne and Mrs. Goddard. The Misses V. Mahony and N. Stoker passed into the final of the women's doubles, only conceding two games to the Misses P. Spicer and S. Hogan in a straight set semi-final. Details:—

ROYAL HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES.

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Royal Hospital for Incurables was held at the Hospital on Tuesday morning, 18th inst., at 9.30 o'clock—

Sir Walter H. Boyd, Bart., K.C. (Chairman), presiding.

There were 233 Governors present at this meeting.

The proceedings of the last meeting of the Board were read, confirmed and signed.

Mrs. G. Hill Tulloch, Miss Henshaw, Mr. Timothy Bradford and Mr. Patrick Lynch, K.C., LL.D., having kindly consented to act, were appointed Visiting Governors for the month.

Mr. James E. Willoughby, L.D.S.I., was unanimously elected a Life Governor on the nomination of the executors of the late Edward Wilkinson.

The Chairman appealed for contributions to liquidate the bank debt, and especially for contributions of £21 to qualify the kind donors as Life Governors. The Hospital (containing 249 beds) has claims on all classes of the community, as it admits poor and necessitous incurable patients, without religious distinction, and from all parts of IRELAND WITHOUT FEE OR REWARD FROM THE SUFFERER.

TO OWNERS OF GARDENS.

The Board will be grateful for any donations of surplus fruit and vegetables, and the Lady Superintendent will acknowledge same on behalf of the patients.

The election of patients was then proceeded with, and the following, having obtained the highest number of votes, were declared duly elected, one for immediate admission and two to remain out on a weekly allowance from the funds, pending suitable vacancies:—Mary Anne Hewitt, Mary Anne Brady and Elizabeth Anne Marsh.

The Board adjourned to Tuesday, 20th August, when an election for male patients will take place.

Contributions are earnestly solicited and will be gratefully received by Sir Walter H. Boyd, Bart., K.C. (Chairman), Bainagowan, Palmerston Park, Dublin; Arthur H. S. Orpen Esq. (Vice-Chairman), Brooklawn, Stradbrook, Blackrock, Co. Dublin; Alfred G. Hollinshead, Esq. (Hon. Treasurer), The Haven, Palmerston Gardens, Dublin, or by the Registrar at the Hospital.

GOLF

BURKE'S EIGHTH FINAL

Former Holder and O'Sullivan Play for Irish Close Title

BY OUR GOLF CORRESPONDENT.

FOR the eighth time John Burke, entered this year from the Castletroy Club, Limerick, will to-day figure in the final of the Irish Close Amateur Championship. His opponent will be Dr. William O'Sullivan, of the Dooks and Killarney clubs. Both are international players, but it will be O'Sullivan's first appearance in the final, in which Burke has been five times successful.

In the semi-final round yesterday, at Dollymount, Burke beat William Gill in one of the best matches of the championship by two and one, and it was by the same margin that O'Sullivan prevailed over the youthful representative of the Sutton Club, Joseph Carr, who accomplished his best performance in championship golf by bringing his opponent to the seventeenth.

EWING'S HEAVY DEFEAT

The outstanding feature of the day's play was the overwhelming victory of O'Sullivan in his morning match with R. C. Ewing, the British Walker Cup player, who was beaten by six and five. Ewing, however had gone completely off his game. At the second, fourth, eighth and ninth he was in rough patches from the tees, and with O'Sullivan playing as he did, being out in an approximate 36, the Sligo man made far too many slips to have a chance of putting up a fight. Four up at the turn, O'Sullivan went into a lead of five at the eleventh, and with Ewing bunkered at the twelfth, and losing that hole also, the Kerryman required but a half at the next for the match. The winner was two over fours when he finished.

Charles Robertson reached the turn in 36 in his match with Burke, despite which he was four down. Burke played perfect golf, and his putting, which for a long time had been retarding his progress, now left nothing to be desired. I noticed that he has changed his grip on the putter. The palm of the right hand faces the hole, as does the back of the left, and his stroking of the ball off the left foot dead on the line was in striking contrast to many of his previous exhibitions on the greens in these championship matches. On the third green he holed from ten yards, and at the ninth he again got down from twelve yards for a two. He was out in 31, his figures being 4, 4, 3, 3, 4, 3, 4, 4, 2, and for the remaining holes he was 5, 5, 3, 4.

Young Carr had a big win over another youthful player from Dun Laoghaire, J. Malone. The margin was five and four, but we have not heard the last of the loser in our championships; indeed, I would place him well in the front rank of our most promising young players. He has a very good style, hits the ball well and far, and possesses the right temperament. He was never in the lead against Carr, who was level fours for the fourteen holes.

The Golf in the Gill—J. P. Carroll match was somewhat scrappy, but it was a fine finish to the home hole, where Gill, after being out of bounds, holed a splendid putt for a 4 and the match. Carroll would have had a chance of bringing the match further but for driving into the drain and having to pick out.

THE SEMI-FINALS

Not for a considerable time has Burke played golf of the quality that he put up against Gill in the semi-final round. He reached the turn in 35 strokes for a lead of one hole, and at the seventeenth was approximately 65, with a 3 at the thirteenth, where Gill knocked his ball in putting for his 4. Gill had none of the "breaks," but he played excellent golf and never wavered. The Portmarnock man was certainly out of luck when a remarkable recovery by his opponent deprived him of what seemed a certain win after they had driven from the fifth tee. Burke was almost on the shore from a badly sliced drive, with the other ball right down the middle; but Burke effected a characteristic recovery from a bad lie in the sandhills, and his pitch enabled him to snatch a half in 4 and prevent Gill taking a lead of two. At the seventh, Burke holed from eight yards for a 3, Gill barely failing from three yards for the half. That squared the match, for Gill had taken the lead at the third. Burke took the lead at the eighth with a 4, holing from six yards, Gill's drive being bunkered.

There is no golfer in this country who has such a variety of shots in his bag as the Lahinch man. He produced one of them at the eleventh. Almost forty yards short of the green in two, he played a running shot with the mashie along the turf. It did not seem possible for the ball to even reach the green, but the necessary strength had been given it, and it ran on and down the slope to finish just beyond the flag.

THE O'SULLIVAN-CARR MATCH

It was a great shot, and it left Burke 2 up, Gill having an orthodox 5. Then, at the twelfth, Burke from the near edge of the green almost holed for 2, the ball striking the back of the hole and coming to rest a foot or so off it. A half resulted; but misfortune overcame the Portmarnock man at the thirteenth when he knocked in the other ball for a 3, which left him 3 down. Three down with three to play, Gill fought on doggedly; but a magnificent bold pitch to the seventeenth, following a very long drive along the right, left Burke sitting pretty for the necessary half in 4 and the match.

Behind Burke and Gill, Carr was making a real match of it with O'Sullivan. He was in the lead at the first and sixth, but O'Sullivan squared at the eighth, and with Carr trapped at the ninth, and losing it, he became one down for the first time. He never got in front again. At the twelfth he was short from the tee and lost it to a 3; but he holed a twelve yard putt at the thirteenth for a 3 to reduce the arrears. O'Sullivan had the fourteenth in 4. Carr playing a bad second and being short with his third. A horrible hook from the fifteenth tee by O'Sullivan was followed by a magnificent drive by his opponent; but, although Carr won the hole he required 5 to do so. O'Sullivan holed from fifteen yards for a 2 at the sixteenth and closed the door, and both being out of bounds at the seventeenth it was halved in five.

The final over thirty-six holes will be played to-day at 10.30 and 2.30.

FOURTH ROUND.

W. J. Gill (Portmarnock) beat J. P. Carroll (Bundoran), 1 up.

John Burke (Castletroy) beat C. W. Robertson (Portmarnock)—6 and 5.

Dr. W. M. O'Sullivan (Killarney) beat R. C. Ewing (Co. Sligo)—6 and 5.

J. Carr (Sutton) beat J. Malone (Dun Laoghaire)—5 and 4.

SEMI-FINALS.

Burke beat Gill—2 and 1.

O'Sullivan beat Carr—2 and 1.

QUESTIONS IN THE DAIL

TRAMWAY WORKSHOPS AT INCHICORE

Replying to Alderman P. S. Doyle (F.G., Dublin, South) in the Dail yesterday as to the threatened closing down of the Dublin United Tramway Company's workshops at Inchicore, and the consequent disemployment of a further batch of skilled and unskilled workers, owing to the difficulty of obtaining supplies of 'bus materials, and if he could state what prospects there were of the re-employment of workers who had been disemployed, Mr. LEMASS, Minister for Supplies, said that the matter had been receiving the attention of his Department for some time past. He regretted that it was impossible for him to give any assurance in the matter of supplies or to express an opinion as to the prospects of the workers in the Inchicore workshops being re-employed, but every effort was being made, and would be made, to assist the company in getting their requirement of imported materials.

Mr. DILLON asked if the Minister had considered if, in the circumstances, he would make representations to the Tramway Company to postpone for the time being the change over from trams to 'buses, and the restoration of a number of trams.

Mr. LEMASS said that he would look into the suggestion that no more of the lines and wires would be removed.

WAR RISKS INSURANCE

Mr. MacENTEE, the Minister for Industry and Commerce, informed Mr. E. O'Neill (F.G., Cork West) that he had no definite evidence that manufacturers and merchants desiring to buy reserve stocks had been precluded from doing so owing to inability to get insurance cover against war risks, but recently the Federation of Irish Manufacturers had suggested that that danger existed. He had asked the Federation, in consultation with the Chambers of Commerce or other interested bodies, to consider what scheme of commodity insurance would, in their judgment, be best in present circumstances. He had promised to give careful consideration to any such proposal.

THE LATE DEPUTY MOORE

At the beginning of business, Mr. DE VALERA paid a tribute to the memory of Deputy Seamus Moore, whose unexpected death occurred a week ago, and asked the Speaker to place on record the sympathy of Dail Eireann on the death of the deputy.

Deputies rose in their places in silent expression of their sympathy.

ALLEGED IMPORTATION OF BATTERIES

£600 FINE IMPOSED AT NEWRY

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

NEWRY, Wednesday.

At Newry Petty Sessions to-day, before Major McCallum, R.M., Owen Toner, Tullyvallen, was fined £600 or six months' imprisonment for importing 9,582 flash-lamp batteries, 4,336 electric torches, 596 electric cycle lamps and 450 electric flash bulbs from Eire, with intent to evade the duty thereon, on December 20.

In evidence it was stated that defendant hired a transport lorry at Newtownhamilton, saying that it was to collect some fowl and butter. At Ballinrea and Tullyvallen a number of boxes were loaded on the lorry, and all were brought to a yard in Monaghan street, Newry.

Defendant in evidence said that he had agreed to store the stuff for two men whose lorry had broken down the previous night. They gave him 30s. to hire a lorry the following morning and take the stuff to Newry. He denied that he knew what the boxes contained.

Bail was fixed at £600 with two sureties of £300 each for the purpose of an appeal.

SPECIAL CRIMINAL COURT

WOMAN AWAITING TRIAL

INSPECTION OF BANK ACCOUNTS

The Special Criminal Court, sitting at Collins' Barracks, Dublin, yesterday, granted an ex parte application made by Mr. G. D. Murnaghan, on behalf of the Attorney-General, for liberty to inspect the account in the Munster and Leinster Bank, Dame street, Dublin, of Mrs. Iseult Stuart, Laragh Castle, Co. Wicklow, who is at present awaiting trial.

The Court also made an order that the manager of the bank attend the hearing of the case and produce abstracts of the accounts.

Mr. Murnaghan made the application on the affidavit of Mr. D. O'Donovan, solicitor, for the Attorney-General.

POSSESSION OF REVOLVERS

FIVE YEARS' IMPRISONMENT

Edward Curtin, a native of Kilmallock, formerly a Volunteer in Collins Barracks, Cork, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment by the Special Criminal Court at Collins Barracks, Dublin, to-day, when he was found guilty of having in his possession a Webley revolver and ammunition, and of stealing the revolver, the property of an officer of the Defence Forces.

He had pleaded guilty to having the revolver and ammunition in his possession without a firearms certificate.

Mr. G. D. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. D. O'Donovan, Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted.

LIMERICK MAN RELEASED

John Shortt, alias John Conran, 4 Courtbrack, South Circular road, Limerick, entered into recognisances before the Special Criminal Court at Collins' Barracks, Dublin, yesterday, to be of good behaviour for a period of two years.

On March 13 last defendant was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment, to date from February 4, for being in possession of a revolver and ammunition without a firearms certificate. The Court ordered that if, after the expiration of six months' of the sentence, the prisoner entered into recognisances for two years he would be released from custody.

John Shortt, alias John Couran, 4 Courtsary recognisances was released.

SWEDEN'S FILM INDUSTRY

THE DEVELOPMENT OF "SHORTS" AND NEWSREELS

BY REV. R. S. DEVANE, S.J.

The population of Sweden is about 6,000,000. Though its area is many times that of Ireland large portions of Sweden are uninhabited. American film importers state that of the total income from films shown in Sweden 54 per cent. go to Sweden, 38 per cent. to U.S.A., 8 per cent. to other countries.

STOCKHOLM STUDIOS

It is rather surprising to learn that there are eleven film-producing companies all situated in Stockholm. They produced 27 full-length or feature films in 1935, 28 in 1936, 25 in 1937, 28 in 1939; the average is between 25 and 30 a year. In addition, a large number of shorts, documentaries, newsreels, etc., are produced. The industry is well equipped and well financed.

Both exhibition and production are dominated by the Svensk Filmindustri, which owns studios at Rasunda, has a chain of over a hundred cinemas and supplies programmes to about five hundred others. This company was established in a small provincial town, Kristianstad, in the South of Sweden, in 1907. In 1911 it removed to Stockholm and built the first Swedish film studio there. In 1912 "Victor Sjostrom directed 'Ingeborg Holm,' one of the first of the productions which were to create a new film tradition," according to H. Forsyth Hardy, film critic to The Scotsman, in an article in the British Film Institute's invaluable quarterly, "Sight and Sound," entitled "The Cinema in Scandinavia." "In 1919 a large new studio was built at Rasunda. It was here that Sjostrom made his later films and Mauritz Stiller directed Arne's 'Treasure' and Greta Garbo in 'The Atonement of Gosta Berling.'"

CHIEF CHARACTERISTICS

According to the above authority there are three chief characteristics of the Swedish film: (a) the lyrical use of natural backgrounds; (b) its traditional concern with heavy psychological themes; (c) its light-hearted humour and comedy. The first and third will naturally appeal to us. He instances "Varmlanningarna" as exemplifying the first. "It is essentially a folk-film, and its account, based on a traditional story, of the love of a rich landowner's son for a poor crofter's daughter draws much atmosphere from shots of light playing on trees, mist over the earth and slight figures against snow. Watching it I felt, with C. A. Lejeune (The Observer Film Critic), that 'the old personification of the elements has never quite left the Scandinavian mind. Wind, wood, water, is still alive; light and darkness are still elementals.'"

One cannot help recalling those weird landscapes of our own west country, whose sombre lights give so much inspiration to our present-day Irish artists. When shall a director with the vision of a poet arise in Eire to use the camera as an artist? Robert Flaherty partly revealed the compelling forceful beauty of our Aran Islands; who shall "screen" the wild, wistful beauty of Donegal, Connemara, Clare and Kerry and the simple pastoral beauty elsewhere? It is, I think, very much more the soul of the artist than the cramping influence of limited finance that sends director and camera man in the smaller countries to find cheap "sets" in the natural background of their country, and so to produce films that are as distinctively national as the country's painting or poetry. We have very much more and more varied material to draw on in Eire than have the Swedes in Sweden. When shall Eire make her national contribution to the history and development of the film?

VICTOR SJOSTROM

A remarkable film dealing with the life of the Swedish-American inventor, John Ericsson (1803-1889), was made a few years ago. The title rôle was played by Victor Sjostrom, acting again, after an interval of twenty-five years, for the company with which he started his film career, the Svensk Filmindustri. He had been directing in Hollywood, where he made a great reputation for himself. "Among the players and technicians he was regarded with the respect due to one of the great figures of the world cinema; the young actress playing the heroine would curtsy towards him as she came on to the set." It will take some time to develop a director like Sjostrom, or an actress like Garbo, but I have no doubt that the artistic sense of our people, especially in drama, is not second to that of Sweden when like opportunities—above all a film-studio—are afforded. Nor shall the personal sacrifices of the film-makers and actors be found to be less in an Irish national studio than they are in Sweden or in "The Abbey," or in "The Gate." Of course, we must creep before we can walk; it would be extremely imprudent in my opinion to start production of feature films from the beginning. Some water will flow under the Dublin bridges before this becomes possible. We must begin at the very beginning by making some news-reels, shorts and documentaries.

It is interesting to hear Mr. Hardy's views on the Swedish "shorts." "What surprised me most in Swedish production was the quality of the short film. I had not expected to find a strongly-developed school of short film production which, while it has not yet tackled social problems, in other respects compares favourably with our own (British). The Svensk Filmindustri has five directors producing shorts, and they have considerable freedom in choosing subject matter and developing style": one shall suffice for us for some time!

He tells us that one of them "has specialised in films assembled from old news-reels and other historic material, of which the company has a rich store." Just think how indignant will future generations of Irishmen be when, later on, owing to the development of our own news-reels and film production in general, they realise what they have lost of the motion-picture history of their country because no provision was made for filming historical events, nor for a "sound truck" to record the voices of our national heroes—soldiers and leaders and poets—nor for a national archives to hold them.

However, I must pay a personal tribute (not for the first time, let it be said) to our cultured censor, Mr. James Montgomery, who, I believe, on his own initiative, has retained some films of historical events taken by newsreel cameramen, and has thus saved them for the nation. But why adopt a laisser faire attitude? Why should we not have a National Film Institute, as in so many other countries to-day, part of whose duty would be to look after this and similar matters and act on behalf of the nation? As an instance of the care Sweden exercises over her newsreel: I may mention that a Royal Proclamation of October 9, 1939, prohibited the importation of newsreels of current events equipped with Swedish sub-titles or sound. Our "Irish News Reel" is quite an offence to our intelligence, and to really thoughtful people an unseemly jest.

A NATIONAL PRIDE

The Swedes take a national pride in their films. A few years ago a public meeting of prominent people was held in the Concert Hall at Stockholm to protest against the production of too many of what they called "Pilsner" films—"frothy, frivolous affairs that compared ill with the great achievements of the past. The particular source of annoyance was a film called 'Boarding House Paradise.' Critics, authors, journalists, social workers and people prominent in civic life debated and discussed and exhorted until about three in the morning." We shall have feature films as good in their own line as the plays of the Abbey Theatre are in theirs, when the Irish opposite numbers of the Swedish classes mentioned above take an equally intelligent interest in our Irish films—and not until then.

Paul Rotha, in "The Film Till Now," throws some light on the grounds for the dissatisfaction of these irate Swedes. "During the years immediately following the war, Sweden produced a number of films that had great influence on the cinema in France and Germany. They were realised with exceptional visual beauty, being characterised by their lyrical quality of theme and by their slowness of development. For their environment, full use was made of the natural landscape value of Sweden, whilst their directors were marked by their poetic feeling. The themes were for the most part tragically conceived, and treated from a heavy psychological point of view, two qualities that were responsible for the half-hearted acceptance of the Swedish cinema by foreign exhibitors and renters." This was in the hey-day of production. Perhaps, however, the chief reason for the decline of the Swedish film is to be found in the fact that Hollywood swallowed up the chief directors who helped to make it, Sjostrom, Stiller, and Brunius—a danger that is to be anticipated by all nations who produce films.

EDUCATIONAL "SHORTS"

Mr. Hardy, in the article referred to, says that "short films are also used extensively for educational purposes, the school cinema being an established instructional aid in Sweden. Extensive exchange arrangements have been made with other producing countries, and recently seventy-five G-B Instructional films (London) were acquired for use in Swedish schools." I can confirm this, for owing to the courtesy of Mr. Dulanty (who forwarded on my behalf a questionnaire which I drew up), the following, among other, information has been supplied by the Swedish Government.

"No production units controlled or financially assisted by the Government exist. The Agricultural Board has received a State grant for the production of a small number of films. Svensk Filmindustri, the most important Swedish company, uses 'mobile cinemas' for showing films in about 4,000 rural schools. Only a small number of these films seem to be concerned with public health or agriculture. In all, about 10,000 schools in Sweden arrange showings of educational films. The bulk of these are primary schools, but there is a growing tendency for the higher schools to make use of educational films."

"Svensk Filmindustri has a central film library (also archives for negatives) for educational films. This company has produced a number of educational films, and also uses many foreign-produced films, which are bought in negative and edited for use in Sweden."

SWEDISH CAPITAL

"All cinemas in Sweden are in the hands of Swedish capital. By Swedish law the rights of foreign citizens to own property or to hold shares in property-owning limited companies are very strictly limited."

To sum up, Sweden, with 6,000,000 population, produces 25 to 30 feature films a year, and numerous shorts, documentaries and news-reels. Eire is not represented on her cinema screen by either a feature or a documentary, or a short or a news-reel, wholly produced in Eire.

Though the cinema is admittedly one of the greatest powers for influencing a people, yet it is unrecognised, or, rather, it is ignored by us. Semi-civilised Albania is probably the only other country in Europe that does not make a serious effort towards some regular film production. Lest anyone may go to the trouble of reminding me—I know what Richard Hayward, Tom Cooper, Colonel Haddick and others have done. I simply add we have not an up-to-date, fully-equipped film studio, nor a film laboratory or "processing plant" to develop and print a film: both are a prime necessity for any real domestic production. However, I have no doubt these will come, and other essential elements, too.

The use of educational films, so common in Sweden, is practically unknown here, either in primary or secondary or other schools. Sweden sets us an example that we should do well to study.

[NOTE.—After these articles had been written, by a strange coincidence, Dr. Thomas Bodkin, in his recent lecture on "Portraiture," in T.C.D., made a suggestion as regards the making of film records of our national leaders, similar to what I said in this article: "What would we not give," he asked, "for fifty photographs and a short sound-film to tell us of Shakespeare's appearance and manner of speech—more than for any portrait by any artist who worked in the England of his day! Why should we not begin to plan immediately to transmit such a record of our great men to our descendants?"]

BRITAIN'S AIR STRENGTH

MORE 'PLANES THAN WHEN OFFENSIVE BEGAN

The Royal Air Force now possesses more aeroplanes than it had when Germany's great offensive began. Lord Beaverbrook (British Minister of Aircraft Production) in a statement to the Press Association yesterday, said: "Aircraft production in this country, in every category, has since May 10 exceeded the total casualty list, including casualties sustained through accidents at home. The aircraft available, of every type now in use, exceeds the number of machines at the disposal of the Air Force when the battle broke out. In addition to production, repairs have replenished stocks. There is now on hand a very good surplus stock of engines."

FIRMER STOCK MARKETS

PREMIER INSPIRES CONFIDENCE

DUBLIN

Trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange was of much broader dimensions yesterday, and a bright feature was the sharp recovery in British Securities, following Mr. Chamberlain's statement. On the other hand, local securities presented a depressed appearance on fresh liquidation.

Home Government Funds showed losses all round, and the second and Third National Loan, together with 4 p.c. Conversion Loan, all lost fractions. Financial Agreement Loan fell 10/- to 98⅝, and Irish Sugar Deb. relapsed a point to 97½. 4½ p.c. Land Bonds was the only exception, and advanced 15/- to 103¾. British Funds were a strong feature, and 3½ p.c. War Loan spurted 1½ points to 96½.

Fresh selling was in evidence among Banks, and Bank of Ireland stock slumped ten points to 255 and Nationals weakened 1/- to 32/-. Guinness units enjoyed good local support, and closed 1/6 higher at 57/6. Cairnes Ord. fell 2/9 to 4/-. Rails continued weak, and Great Northern Deb. lost 1½ points at 47½ and Great Southern Deb. 2½ points at 46½. Dublin Tram Ord. gave way to 7/10½ and the Pref. to 18/-. Cement Ord. shaded off to 27/- and the Deb. drooped to 103 x.d. Irish Dunlop Pref. and May Roberts (Ireland) Ord. both weakened 1/-, while Irish C.S. Buildings and Irish Sugar Pref. inclined easier.

There was welcome support for Tobaccos and B.A.T. Ord. gained 4/9 at 72/9 and Imperial Tobaccos 3/4½ at 82/9. Courtaulds recovered 1/- to 22/6 and United Molasses Ord. added pence at 17/9. Imperial Chemical Ord. made headway to 24/4½, but Dunlop Rubbers declined to 21/-.

VALUE OF DOLLAR

The United States dollar is worth, approximately, 4s. 11½d. in Dublin to-day.

LONDON

The British Prime Minister's speech gave fresh heart to the London Stock Markets yesterday, and there was more confidence throughout the House, with the general tone steadier than for some days past. The principal effect, as far as business and price movements were concerned, was on Gilt-edged securities, which established a good recovery and closed at their best points, rises ranging up to 1¼.

The better atmosphere in other departments was not translated into actual business, however, and, although the upswing in Gilt-edged put a brighter complexion on leading Industrials, which have suffered severe set-backs of late, conditions generally were still subdued, with numerous issues unable to emerge from their recent dullness. British Rails were again prominent among the more unpopular issues, and Kaffirs continued uncertain.

Gilt-edged securities attracted attention right from the start, and under the influence of a steady inflow of small buying orders from investors, who were taking advantage of the opportunity of getting in near the minimum levels, quotations went ahead throughout the list. The recovery was chiefly noticeable in Old War Loan and Conversion 3½ per cent., both issues rebounding to 97½; but Old Consols, Consols 4 per cent., and Local Loans also finished with substantial gains.

DEALINGS PROHIBITED

The Foreign section experienced a lifeless session, turnover being negligible owing to the fact that dealings in Brazilian Bonds and a number of Europeans were prohibited. Far Easterns continued on the down grade, and Japanese 6 per cent., 1924, lost another point to 33.

Uncertainties regarding possible air raid damage to the lines effectively kept buyers out of the British Rail group, and, consequently, the recent decline was carried a stage further, though marking down was less severe than on the two preceding days. Great Western Ord. and Southern Prefd. were the weakest spots among junior issues, both closing a point off at 25 and 39, respectively. The outstanding movement among the prior charges was a fresh fall of 5 to 67½ in Great Western 5 per cent. Pref.

Foreign Rails formed another heavy group, with Cordoba Central issues still on offer. American and Colonial Rails provided little of interest, business in several issues being suspended.

INDUSTRIALS

The Industrial market opened with a firmer tendency. Business, however, remained small, and the early improvement in prices was not maintained. In fact, several dull spots emerged during the afternoon, particularly among Breweries and Electric Supply shares. British Electric Traction Def. provided a bright feature, the price rising to 600 at one time on the dividend announcement, eventually closing at 540.

Iron, Coal and Steel shares remained unsettled, though a few buyers appeared for Stewarts and Lloyds Def. around 32s. Among Electric Supply issues, Metropolitans fell 2/- to 26/-, North Met. Power 1/6 to 26/- and Scottish 1/- to 28/-. Apart from Distillers, which rallied further to 53/-, Breweries lost ground. Bass fell another 2/6, Benskins 2/-, Charringtons 2/6, Courage 2/3 and Ind Coope 2/-. Guinness at 57/- were 1/- easier. Tobacco shares had a firmer appearance, and "Bats" rose 1⁄16, with "Imps" 1⁄32 up.

In other directions, Courtaulds strengthened to 22/9, Woolworths to 46/6, Imperial Chemicals to 24/6, British Oxygens to 2 9⁄16, and Turner and Newall to 2 21⁄32. Dunlops were 3d. easier at 22/-, and Lever and Unilever lost another 1/- at 18/-.

MINES

There was a steadier tendency in Kaffirs. Business hardly assumed greater proportions than on preceding days, but the Cape reappeared as a tentative buyer of small lots, and local sentiment improved.

In the dividend-payers, Govt. Areas stood out with a rise of ⅛ to 1 7⁄16, and "Sallies" rose similarly to 4. Others to show up well included East Daggas at 1 9⁄32, Rose Deep at 2 and Randfontein at 1 9⁄16. Finance issues were occasionally a fraction firmer.

Other sections of the Mining market, however, failed to emulate the performance of Kaffirs. West Africans were still distinctly off colour. Ashantis fell another ⅛ to 1 11⁄16 and Bibiani were 9d. lower at 14/-.

Gold shares elsewhere were barely tested, but Diamonds were still looking uncertain, with fresh losses of ¼ in De Beers Def. at 2¾ and in the Pref. at 6¾. Rhodesian Coppers were without quotable alteration, but among miscellaneous producers Tintos further fell to 9.

OILS AND RUBBERS

As was the case on Tuesday, there was a tendency to pick up the better class Oil shares at the lower levels to which they had fallen. Actually, however, the volume of business was of little importance owing to the fact that the buying orders received were in extremely small lines of shares.

Moreover, where demand existed it was generally found that stock was in poor supply. This was particularly noticeable in Anglo-Iranians, V.O.C., Attock and Anglo-Ecuadorians. Shells kept around 2⅜ throughout the day. Anglo-Iranians improved at one time to 1 13⁄16, but were finally unchanged at 1 25⁄32. Burmahs were inclined to dullness, the price of the £ units falling 1⁄16 to 2 5⁄16. Eagle issues were featureless.

There was no improvement in conditions in the Rubber share market, which remained idle and dull. A little buying was in progress here and there, but it had no effect on prices. All movements, indeed, were downwards.

MONEY RATES UNCHANGED

Though money and bill rates are unchanged, clearing bank demand for bills remains on a limited scale, and the banks are not now expected to return to the market in force until the turn of the half-year. On the other hand, this is not expected to result even in the slight hardening of bill rates, which would be normal at this time of year. In present conditions there is no doubt that outside competition for bills will be reduced to levels which would permit the discount market to secure a fair allotment, even at the rate of 1½ p.c. But such considerations are no longer the guiding factor in market policy.

Silver prices experienced a reversal of the previous tendency in a decline of ½d. in cash to 23d., and a recovery of 1⁄16d. in forward to 23 11⁄16d. per oz.

An interesting movement in exchanges was a narrowing of the spread between buying and selling rates for yen to 1½d. from the previous exceptionally wide margin of 1⅞d. The middle rate was 1⁄16d. easier at 16⅛d.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Bangrin Tin Dredging.—Net profit £51,239 (against £44,650). Final 5 per cent., making 10 per cent.; forward £14,475 (against £12,658).

Cam and Motor Gold.—No final dividend is to be paid. An interim of 24 per cent. was paid in December, and this compares with a total of 52 per cent. distributed in the year to June 30, 1939.

Doncaster Amal Collieries.—Profit £427,830 or £211,180 more than for the previous twelve months, while the net profit was more than doubled at £289,250, against £120,115. As already known, the Ordinary dividend is 4 per cent. (against nil).

Griffiths Hughes Proprietaries, Ltd.—The operating company, E. Griffiths Hughes, Ltd., made a trading profit of £174,739, against £106,570, and, with other income higher than a year ago, total income amounted to £190,968, compared with £117,756. Net profit £155,418 (against £112,550).

Hovis.—The directors announce that they are unable to issue the accounts for the year ended March 31, 1940, with their report, as the company's business was taken over as from September 3, 1939, by the Board of Trade Flour Mills Control Committee.

Kaduna Syndicate.—Profit £27,480 (against £18,102). Total distribution at 58½ per cent. compares with 29 1-6 per cent.

Phœnix Prince Gold Mining Co.—Dividend of 5 per cent., less tax, for the year ended March 31, 1940. This is the first dividend ever paid by the company, which was registered in April, 1935.

Royal Mail Lines.—Trading profit was maintained in the year 1939 at £915,616, compared with £903,187 in 1938, while the total revenue was some £22,000 higher at £1,002,218. The year's Ordinary dividend is repeated at 5 per cent.

Trinidad Petroleum Development.—Interim of 5 per cent. on the Ordinary (against nil) for the year ended July 31, 1939; shareholders received 15 per cent.

SMALL CHANGES ON WALL STREET

STEELS IMPROVE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

While some easy spots persisted, the majority of stocks advanced fractions to a point in the turnover of 560,000 shares. Of the 628 issues traded, 288 were higher and 186 were lower.

In view of the uncertainties, the market was dull and irregular, with only a handful of 1-point changes either way. Steels and Aircrafts improved—the latter after Representative Vinson's remarks against scaling down production profits. Copper shares were restrained, but Oil issues were not affected by President Roosevelt's opposition to the closing down of oil producing wells in Texas. Papers were quiet. A leading manufacturer has advanced the price of paper bags by $8.00 per ton.

With confidence lacking, however, the rallies lacked follow through, but the majority finished fractions to a point higher, and the closing tone was steady.

Sterling exchange opened 1¾c. lower at $3.60, and closed 3½c. down at $3.58½. Silver was unchanged at 34¾c.

BUNDORAN CARNIVAL AWARDS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BUNDORAN, Wednesday.

The following awards were made to-day at the publicity parade in connection with Bundoran Carnival:—

General—Conlan's Bakery, Bundoran, and Ballyshannon Hosiery Company—a tie.

Costume—The Misses Corcoran and Meehan.

Cycle Racing—J. Lynn, Omagh, and T. McGinley, Ballybofey.

For refusing to halt at a road barricade when requested to do so Frederick Percival Strutt (24), a chauffeur, of Cambria road, Mansfield, was at Mansfield yesterday sent to prison for three months and disqualified from driving for two years. The case was a sequel to the death of a girl who was shot by a sentry while in a car. Strutt said he did not see the sentry swinging a red light until he was very close to him. According to the police the motorist travelled 170 feet beyond the barrier before he pulled up.

MACAURA:
NATIONAL STADIUM
SOUTH CIRCULAR ROAD
WEDNESDAY EVENING NEXT
8 o'clock

FREE TREAT FOR DUBLIN SUFFERERS

ON Wednesday next Macaura, the "Second Edison," is giving a Lesson-Demonstration with his latest blood-circulating machine, the Pulsocaura. Those competent to express an opinion consider this one of the most astounding and useful inventions of the present century.

"Human beings become human dynamos," said a doctor, who had witnessed one of these Macaura demonstrations.

The Pulsocaura breaks up and disperses rheumatic deposits in the joints and circulates the blood through sluggish and lifeless limbs.

It flushes catarrhal eustation tubes and ears and restores hearing to the deaf, if the ear structure has not been destroyed.

The Pulsocaura likewise clears the bronchial tubes and restores activity to collapsed breathing apparatus, so that bronchial asthmatics breathe freely and permanently again.

In certain cases of paralysis it revives motion in lifeless limbs.

Pulsocaura treatment positively conquers Rheumatism, Arthritis, Neuritis, Sciatica, Flat-foot unless the joints are completely "set" (ankylosed).

Macaura proves this in full view of his audiences and, at the same time, teaches them how to do it themselves.

You will see members of the audience under his instruction healing one another; children curing their parents; machine operators from 8 to 80 years of age working the Pulsocaura and, there and then, bringing about remarkable, salutary physical changes.

Thousands who read the Macaura "Special Articles" on the prevention and mastery of ill-health have now an opportunity of hearing him explain in person how his ingenious invention works such wonders.

Just imagine a mechanical manipulated instrument with long, strong, flexible fingers that grip a limb and loosen its stiff joint, while at the same time conquering the pain. The Pulsocaura fingers work 12½ times as quickly as the most expert human fingers. And their power of penetration is so intense that they set the heavy muscles of the hip rippling like a boxer's biceps.

The slow human hand must exert great pressure to produce even a slight degree of penetration. This dragging pressure hurts inflamed joints and one cannot hurt and heal at the same time. It is the speed of the power-fingers that overcomes pain and muscle spasm.

This freedom from pain enables and encourages the patient to kick his joint loose without enduring the usual agony of motion and he fairly revels in this delightful liberty.

Moreover, the machine stores up such energy in its "fly wheel" that a child can operate it.

When it is applied to the heavy muscles of the hip it feels like numberless fingers penetrating all together clear through to the sciatic nerve; circulating the blood and quickly relieving pain.

This operation is worth seeing. Some people speak of "miracle" or "magic." It is neither. The sufferer naturally stretches the contracted nerve when it no longer hurts to do so. He also tears loose the adhesions (fibrous bands that grow in all inflamed joints) and then feels he should dance for sheer delight.

Imagine a deaf person with the catarrhal deposits cleared away from his eustation tubes and the tiny bones in his ears loosened. When the drums in his ears beat again he feels like one restored to a long-lost world and rejoices.

Asthma is due to a functional paralysis. The Pulsocaura revives the motor nerves controlling this and—soon and sudden—reflex action. Think of the joy of the asthmatic who no longer suffocates

Concentrated power, speed and penetration explain the effects achieved; but the most remarkable and important feature about Pulsocaura Treatment is the permanency of its results.

When it releases the natural forces within the body the cure is carried by the patient himself by night while he sleeps as well as by day.

The Pulsocaura is the victorious enemy of stagnation in the human system and the scientific ally of active mavement, which means life.

There will be many present in the Stadium who were chronic sufferers until treated by Macaura's earlier machine.

The Pulsocaura is infinitely more powerful and effective and cuts out the necessity for payment of fees and loss of time coming and going for treatment.

With the power, penetration and unvarying action of the Pulsocaura people can be treated at home.

The first fifty sufferers from Rheumatic and Asthmatic ailments who report at the Stadium not later than 7 o'clock will get tickets for free treatment with the machine.

ADMISSION TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC FROM 7.30.
DEMONSTRATION AND INSTRUCTION BEGIN AT 8.
QUESTION AND ANSWER TIME WILL FOLLOW THE LESSON

NEED FOR A NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

SENATORS FEAR RESULT OF INVASION

A NATIONAL Government and preparation for economic as well as military difficulties was advocated in the Senate yesterday. The remaining stages of the Port and Docks Bill, the Pier and Harbour Provisional Order Confirmation Bill and the Pier and Harbour Provisional Order Confirmation (No. 2) Bill having been agreed to, the bills were passed.

Mr. SEAN T. O'KELLY, Minister for Finance, presented the Finance Bill, 1940, for second reading. He said that taxation here had now reached a high level and he did not wish to gloss over that fact. They were living in critical and extraordinary times, and it could hardly be expected that taxation could be kept at an ordinary level. Many additional items of expenditure had been forced on them. Interference with the import trade would cause a shrinkage in Customs duties and some industries might have to close down for lack of materials. That, in turn, would mean a shrinkage in income tax. On the expenditure side they were faced with further heavy commitments for national defence. The prospect was a gloomy one, but in these critical times they must be prepared for the most unpleasant contingencies.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

Senator DOUGLAS said that the danger to their economic structure as a result of the war was quite as great as the danger of their being involved in hostilities against their will. Politically they were independent of Great Britain, but geographic and other circumstances had caused their economy to be closely linked with Great Britain. If an invasion of Britain took place it might result in serious dislocations of their trade relations. This country might have to face a very serious economic situation in the near future, for which they ought to be preparing with just as much energy and cooperation as in the matter of defence. Almost the whole of their export trade was with Great Britain and a very large proportion of their essential supplies came from or through Great Britain. If for instance, their coal supply was cut off, many of their industries would have to close down in a comparatively short time. If their normal economic relations with Britain were temporarily suspended it might be possible to obtain increased supplies of essential commodities from the U.S.A., South America, or elsewhere. If so, could they obtain the shipping facilities or the currency to pay for such supplies?

A realisation that there was economic danger just as much as there was danger to their national independence would check both stupid optimism and undue pessimism if the people felt that it was being prepared for by the best men available in the country.

Stocks of certain commodities were lower than they should be owing to the want of any scheme of war risk insurance, and he doubted if the normal governmental machine was suitable to deal with the situation which they might have to face. It would not work with sufficient speed, and they must advise some method of prompt action, even at the risk of some mistakes.

The economic emergency which they might have to face could be best met by a National Government, which should include representatives of as many parties and points of view as practicable. It should be clearly understood that the National Government was for the duration of the emergency only. There was enough unity of purpose to do the best for Ireland without regard to party considerations to enable a National Government to function successfully.

PEOPLE LOYAL

Strong national leadership was needed at this time, and the people as a whole would loyally follow a united leadership, but he would not favour any attempt to force the hands of the present Government, and any proposals for a National Government must come from it.

He could forsee a situation in which the only hope for Ireland would be for the North and South to sink their differences and work together for the common good. There were many sane and patriotic men and women in the six counties who would sacrifice a great deal for the sake of the common good, and he did not believe it impossible to find a basis under which North and South could co-operate closely.

Senator M. HAYES agreed with Senator Douglas that their differences might be economic rather than military, but they might be a combination of both. For the successful working of a National Government there must be agreement on matters of policy.

Senator THE McGILLYCUDDY OF THE REEKS said the Budget was a camouflage of their real financial position and some effort should have been made to introduce economies.

Senator W. QUIRKE said that they already had a Government with the majority of the people behind it and he did not agree that they could have a better form of National Government by an infusion of new elements.

Senator DESMOND FITZGERALD said that the Land Commission, as constituted at present, did more harm than good. It kept alive a moral sore in this country. Any man who saw another with a farm thought that it was the duty of the Government to take it from him and divide it. If during the past eight years the Department of Industry and Commerce had not functioned the bulk of the people would be better off than they were to-day.

Senator F. MacDERMOT was disappointed because the Minister had not given an account of what the Government was doing to face financial and economic difficulties. He agreed with Senator Douglas's suggestion about a National Government. It was of vital importance that they should have such a Government. They had not such a surplus of ability as to leave it in a purely critical capacity. They had not the ablest men that they could have in the Government; they could not get that in one party. It might be necessary to go outside Parliament to get the best men, but they should get them.

REGISTRATION

Senator SEAN GOULDING said it was possible that this country would have to introduce some form of national registration. No country in the future could afford to have young people going around doing nothing.

Senator Mrs. CONCANNON said that they could not have a national government, because they only had twenty-six counties, and the policy and strategy of a national government would be based on the nation as a whole. A coalition government would be disastrous.

Senator PROFESSOR JOHNSTON said that it would be sound national policy to policy to devote the labour of the unemployed to the exploitation of the bogs.

Before direct, friendly contact and unity with Northern Ireland could be achieved there must be a general realisation of unity of moral purpose. They did, in fact, share in all things that really mattered, and that realisation must be fully present in the minds of the people in the North as well as in theirs. There was an association between the fact of partition and the fact of neutrality. If they looked on the matter from the British point of view, perhaps, their neutrality was the price the British were paying for the luxury of partition, and from the Irish point of view, perhaps, partition was the price this country was paying for the luxury of neutrality.

UNHAPPY

Senator Sir JOHN KEANE said that the Government should ask the best brains in the country to come together. That such a step had not been taken was largely the fault of Government supporters in Parliament, who, if they were more independent, would have asked long before now that political differences should cease, and that the crisis should be met by the best brains of the country united in a common cause. Even now it was not too late to ask that something more should be done than merely going on a public platform together. Matters of security were paramount to all minds, and he was most unhappy about it. As far as their neutrality embarrassed or placed obstacles in the way of preparation for defence, it was a source of danger and disservice to the country. While he appreciated the arguments in favour of neutrality, he could clearly see its dangers.

He said that Senator MacDermot had accused the Government of complacency with regard to questions of finance. He could not accept that view, and he had more knowledge on the subject than Senator MacDermot. Both the Government and the banks were fully alive to the dangers and difficulties of the situation, and they had done all that reasonably could be done within the limitations that existed, to protect values and currency. Their currency was linked with that of a belligerent country. There was no escape from that at the present time, and there was no blinking the fact that if Great Britain was to go down in the present struggle this country would suffer. He did not know if they would be any better off if, in the past, they had adopted the suggestion of securing alternative markets. Their trade had been closely bound up for centuries with Great Britain, and could not be disentangled now. The present horrible war would almost be worth while if its effect was to sweep away all over Europe the entanglement of tariff barriers and the damnable doctrine of self-sufficiency which had contributed to the war, and which, if it were not swept away, would render lives miserable for years to come.

Professor TIERNEY said that they were confronted with two dangers—one military and the other economic. The danger that threatened might be upon them in an hour, and even if they escaped the military danger they would be faced with an economic situation before which the petty differences between Fianna Fail and Fine Gael would be the merest trifle. It was the duty of the Government to call together every Irishman who was capable of giving service to Ireland, and to use their services in the best possible manner. It was the paramount duty of the Government in this crisis to yield place to a National Government. The country could not be defended or the problems faced on a limited liability basis. The question was not one of neutrality, but of whether they were going to be able to put up a defence against any enemy that might attack these shores from now on. Refusal to take steps at the moment to form a National Government would be betrayal of the people of this country. The time had come for forming a National Government—far transcending all trifling differences between one party and another. The responsibility for doing that rested primarily on the shoulders of the people now in power.

DOUBT OF SURVIVAL

"Whether the European War does reach these shores or not, we are going to be faced with an economic situation which will require the most revolutionary action on our part if our people are to be saved numberless privations, and even starvation. The things that will have to be done, whether this crisis comes in military form or not, will be so revolutionary that the doctrines of Fianna Fail and Fine Gael will have no relation to them. Whether we like the prospect of a National Government or not, we must have it if we are going to survive as a people. It is a questionable consideration if we will be able to survive this crisis even with a National Government.

Senator P. McGINLEY said that any co-operation with the six counties would mean that they would be taking part in the war, which concerned them only in so far as there was a danger that we might be involved through invasion. If this occurred the people would have to defend their country. Referring to the suggested formation of a National Government, he thought that they had the best Government at present, and it was their duty to co-operate with it.

Senator S. McELLIN did not believe a National Government would cure their economic ills. Success would only come through the co-ordination of all sections down the country, and it would be much better to go in for a certain form of de-centralisation and establish parish councils, which would prove of advantage in an emergency. He suggested that the Minister should set up some organisation to invite contributions from people for national defence; he was not "well off," but if such a fund was started he would give a personal contribution of £100.

MINISTER'S REPLY

Mr. SEAN T. O'KELLY (Minister for Finance), concluding the debate, said that he was particularly struck by the forceful remarks of Senator Tierney, whose contribution struck him because of its strong feeling. It seemed to him that Senator Tierney was of opinion that the Government did not realise the seriousness of the situation. "I can say to him," Mr. O'Kelly continued, "and I can say to this House, that the Government is fully conscious of the situation in Europe and in the world and our intimate relationships to that situation, and what may come out of it. It has been discussed in the Government and at meetings of the Executive Council, and there is not an aspect of the matter that has been raised to-day that has not been discussed at these meetings. It is certain that whether there is going to be any invasion of this country or not, we are bound to be affected in some measure. We are already indirectly affected by the situation. The question for us all then is, how far are we likely to be affected and our interests materially and spiritually likely to be jeopardised, and our whole system brought into jeopardy. I am not going to say that everything has been foreseen; that would be foolish. Many peoples on the Continent thought that they had made provision for everything. We know from recent history that they did not think of everything. I do not believe that any form of government that has been mentioned could have made better provision or could have taken more active and better steps to safeguard the interests of this country than has been taken by our Government. On the contrary, I believe that a change of Government and a Government brought together from the parties would not work as efficiently and in such harmony and with the full confidence of the people as the present Government is doing." We have the interests of the country at heart, and we believe in the people and the nation, and if we thought there was anything we could do, even to the extent of handing over the Government to our predecessors, we would not hesitate a moment.

"I say it is a Government of commonsense," he said, "a Government of wide experience now after a long period of training in public life and responsibility in national affairs. No coalition formed now from the parties would be more effective to do the nation's work at this moment than the present Government."

Senator F. MacDERMOT—It is in the nature of every Government to think that any alternative Government would be inferior to itself.

Mr. O'KELLY—It has the confidence of the people of this country. Some people think that it would have greater confidence if it was a Government formed of the representatives of the parties.

He believed firmly that the foundation of their defence was their neutrality. It was something that they ought to be very happy about, that they were free to be neutral.

They had all their views and sympathies; he had his views and sympathies—very strong ones—but he did not think it right and proper to give expression to them there. Neutrality was the wisest policy for this state to adopt. Any other policy would have had, possibly even for themselves there, without waiting for any invador, disastrous results.

PARTITION

One argument that was mentioned there that enforced the necessity for their neutrality was that they were not complete masters in their own home. They had to bear in mind that they had a big problem in the partition of their country. That problem had its bearing.

He believed that foodstuffs here were available to carry us over a long period. Nobody need fear with regard to our stocks of tea, because we had ample supplies. He could not say when there would be a supplementary Budget, and he hoped it would not be necessary to have one.

The House rose until Wednesday next.

A.R.P. IN DUBLIN

NEED OF 1,700 WARDENS

Addressing a meeting of Air Raid Precautions wardens and residents of No. 2 Area, in the Catholic Young Men's Society Hall, Claude road, Drumcondra, Dublin, last night, Mr. Sean Moylan, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Defence, said that if they were to develop a strong, effective and efficient air raid precautions system, the first essential would be to secure a numerically strong body of men recruited into the organisation, and the second was to have them sufficiently trained to meet any emergency and fill all the posts that it was necessary to fill.

The difficulty at the moment was that a large number of wardens had joined other branches of the defence forces, and, while he did not deprecate the importance of any other service, he did say that the Air Raid Precautions service was not a secondary service; it might, in certain eventualities, be the salvation of the nation in time to come.

Mr. P. J. Hernon, City Manager, said that they wanted 1,500 to 1,700 wardens, and he appealed to all who had not already joined the warden service to register at once.

Major O'Sullivan, Department of Defence, dealt with technical matters in connection with air raid precautions.

Mr. George P. Stokes, Area Warden, presided, and Colonel T. E. Gay, A.R.P. officer, and the Rev. D. Cregan, C.C., and the Rev. J. Redmond, C.C., were among those present.
